Mrs. Annie M. Bradley In Her 'Big Iron House'

Little Arthur and "Cootie" Brown visit their mother almost daily in prison. "Mamma's Big Iron House," as they call it, is to them only a queer big place where their mother is staying for a short time.

'I AM DISGRACED FRIENDLESS'

Witness in Trial of Woman Slayer of Former Senator Tells of Pathetic Scene in Station House Following the Tragedy—Did Mrs. Adams's Letter to Brown Drive Rival to Insane Fury?

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—At the resumption to-day of the trial of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, charged with the murder of former Senator Arthur Brown of Utah, the defence introduced striking evidence in support of its contention that the woman was mentally unsound when she slew the man whose love for her had grown cold.

James Hay, a newspaper man, who interviewed Mrs. Bradley on the evening of the tragedy, testified that she was greatly disturbed mentally. In her talk she kept jumping from one subject to another. When asked if she had no friends she declared:

"No; I am a disgraced, ruined woman; I have no reason to claim anyone as a friend."

MRS. ADAMS'S LETTER.

A letter written by Mrs. Annie A. Adams, mother of Maud Adams, the actress, to Senator Brown, and found torn to bits in his room in the Hotel Raleigh after he was shot, may furnish the basis of the jury's verdict. This letter, the defense insists, wrecked the already tottering reason of Mrs. Bradley and drove her to murder.

It was written by Mrs. Adams in Philadelphia on Dec. 5, and is as follows:

"Dearie, My Dearie! The world has taken on a different hue to me since I got your letter. Believest thou this? I am sorry you were harassed again by that woman. When I passed your house and saw that the gate was open, I thought 'Bolts and bars were better.' If she only realized that she could attain her ends by more dignified means."

This letter had evidently fallen into Mrs. Bradley's hands and in her rage she tore it to bits. They have been carefully pieced together, photographed and will be submitted to the jury.

MRS. BRADLEY TO TELL ALL.

It was positively announced to-day that Mrs. Bradley will take the stand herself and tell every detail of the shooting and of her relations with Brown.

James Hay, a typically alert young newspaper man, was the first witness to-day. He said:

"On the evening of the murder at the first precinct police station I saw Mrs. Bradley and asked her if she had come to Washington to kill Brown. She said, 'No.' I asked her if she had no friends. She answered:

"'No, I am a disgraced, ruined woman; I have no reason to claim any one as a friend.'

"She answered my questions at random, jumping from one subject to another. She sat there and kept pulling at her coat in an aimless way. She was in a bad fix, physically and mentally. I don't know whether she was insane or not."

Judge Powers inquired particularly as to whether or not Mrs. Bradley talked connectedly. Mr. Hay said she was extremely difficult to interview, because of her mental somersaults.

"WAS IN AN AWFUL FIX."

District Attorney Baker sharply took the witness in hand.

"Did you think at the time you were writing an interview with an insane woman?"

"I did not know whether she was sane or insane. I saw she was in an awful fix that night."

Edward S. Cottrell, night editor of the Associated Press, next took the stand. He outlined Hay's interview.

When the defendant entered court today she was more animated than usual. She chatted with the bailiff besides her and with Mrs. Powers, her counsel, before the opening of court.

The scene in the courtroom was cheerless, but for the prisoner's look of confidence.

BROWN'S LOVE LETTERS ARE KEY TO THE TRAGEDY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—That Mrs. Annie M. Bradle was driven insane by the turning from her of former Senator Brown and his spurning of her children is the contention of her lawyers, who find strong support of this defense in the affec

MAIN BURSTS; HOMES IN DORCHESTER FLOODED

RESIDENTS, IN PANIC AS PIPES BLOW UP, RUSH MADLY INTO THE STREETS.

As the result of the bursting of a 36-inch water main in front of No. 36 Geneva avenue Dorchester, early to-day, the cellars under nearly fifty homes are flooded to the floors, furnace fires are out and several families are turned out of their homes.

Following the explosion, which resembled that of a cannon, a scare of panic prevailed through the avenue, and hundreds of people rushed scantily clad into the chilly air. Some believed that their homes were ablaze, as the quenching of the fires in the cellars filled the upper stories with coal gas. One woman shrieked that the end of the world was at hand.

Inundates Cellars.

A giant column of water shot up with a roar, twenty-five feet into the air, and as it fell surged against the houses, inundating the basements. Not only Geneva avenue, but Devon and Stanwood streets suffered. The flooding of houses in the last named street is remarkable, for it is nearly half a mile away, across a vacant field, but is no much lower than Geneva avenue that the overflow water swept down across the already saturated ground and poured into several cellars there.

To-day the street near the scene of the burst was almost impassable, except for boats. A hole twenty-five feet in diameter and fully as deep was gouged in the roadway, with a torrent shooting out of the miniature lake.

The damage, which will reach into the hundreds of dollars, if not thousands, would have been still more serious had not the gates been shut on both sides, checking the rush of the water from the three-foot pipe. Scores of families can obtain no water in their homes to-day, and for a mile on all sides that which is drawn is hardly fit for drinking.

Hundred Men at Pumps.

One hundred men, under the leadership of Deputy Water Commissioners William T. Linehan and J. P. Lennon, are at work pumping out the water and trying to reach the break, which will take all of to-day to mend. Though the pipe burst at 1 a. m., the flood was not checked until 3 o'clock, when an employe of the water department, with the aid of the police, shut the gates. The small pipes leading to the houses are torn out in a number of cases.

"I thought the last day had come," declared Mrs. William Dempsey, who lives all alone at No. 34 Devon street. "When I found the furnace was put out, I went down cellar to get coal for the kitchen stove. The water was above my knees, and I had to fight my way back to the stairs against the rapid rush of the waters.

Make Appeal for Boats.

There were few, who, aroused from sleep in the darkness of the night, realized that the trouble was. Some in their terror telephoned to the police, begging that boats be sent to their rescue, as they could see no way to leave their houses, with a flood of water surging against the very doors. The Webber family on Devon street were taken out by a team at 7.45 a. m. with the water up to the horses' sides.

Chicken coops and dog houses were swept along in the path of the current, the howls of animals mingling with the roar of the geyser and the screams of women. The rush of coal gas into the houses where the furnaces were put out led many to feel that their homes were on fire.

Exit were driven into the houses of D. M. Goldstein and J. A. Wallerstein at No. 30 Devon street. Mr. Goldstein said his back yard looked like a river at 2 o'clock.

Sought Refuge on Roofs.

The residents on Devon street were driven frantic. Express teams carried man away, and children were taken out of bed and carried to the tops of the houses.

Robert Kirkland and George Lake's house, at No. 84 Stanwood tsreet, had a large lake in the yard, and the cellar was flooded. Mrs. Kirkland waded on chairs in her kitchen to get the gas stove, to get the children's breakfast.

The house of James McCarthy at No. 36 Geneva avenue, in front of where the accident occurred, was so badly flooded that the foundations will be examined to see if they are not undermined.

MARKET OPENS STRONG WITH GOVERNMENT AID

PANAMA BOND ANNOUNCEMENT SENDS UP STOCKS ALL ALONG LINE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Under the cheering news that the administration at Washington has determined to relieve the money stringency by selling $30,000,000 in Panama bonds and $100,000,000 of notes of indebtedness, the market opened with a bound.

Transactions were on a heavy basis and strong advances were recorded throughout the list. Prominent issues advanced three points and Great Northern went up four.

Canadian Pacific in all was up 3¾, St. Paul 3, Atchison, Steel common, Smelting and New York Central 2, and the last in all 3, Soo 2½, Copper and Great Northern Ore 1, General Electric opened 2¼ higher, Southern Pacific 2⅜, Steel preferred 2⅜, Reading 1⅜, Northwest 1¼, Union Pacific 2¼, Brooklyn ⅞, Northern Pacific 2¼ and Great Northern 4.

Advices of from 1 to 3 points were recorded in London in American railway shares. The character of the New York bank statement and the failure to raise the discount rate of the Bank of England have helped sentiment. The market's feature was the heavy bear covering.

There was a buoyant tone to the copper shares at the opening of the Boston market, reflecting the relief measures taken by the government. Trading was active and orders well distributed.

Brokers are anticipating a renewal of odd lot buying for investment account, which fell off somewhat the past week or ten days.

Copper Range and North Butte were early features of strength. At the opening Copper Range was 59, up 2, later 59½; North Butte, 96, up 2; Telephone, 91½, up 1¼; Greene Canaea, 54.

There was urgent and extensive covering of shorts and some scattered investment buying, that caused the advances from one to over four points to continue after the first hour.

Leaden was a fairly large buyer of Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Steel preferred, and bought small amounts of the stocks, about 10,000 in all. Union Pacific and Reading were apparently helped by manipulative orders.

Government bonds unchanged; other bonds unchanged.

PRESIDENT STEPS TO AID OF COUNTRY WITH SALE OF BONDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Reports from all over the country to-day reflect the interest and general satisfaction among financiers and business men in the announcement that President Roosevelt has authorized the sale of $50,000,000 Panama Canal bonds, and of $100,000,000 worth of United States notes of indebtedness, if that amount is necessary, to relieve the financial stringency of the country and to furnish the money needed in the South and West to move the crops.

In a letter to Secretary George B. Cortelyou of the United States Treasury, President Roosevelt makes an urgent appeal for the restoration of confidence. He advises the people to withdraw their supplies of hoarded money and put them into circulation.

He points out that the banks throughout the country are solvent, that the per capita circulation has increased enormously and that co-operation by the people is all that is necessary to restore normal business conditions.

President Roosevelt's authority for issuing notes of indebtedness is taken from the act of June 13, 1898, passed by Congress for the purpose of raising money for the Spanish war. As the money was not needed, none of the certificates were ever sold. Technical authority for the measure is found in the phrasing of the act, which imposes no specific limitation of the purposes for which the notes of indebtedness may be issued.

There is no question as to the authority for the issuance of the Panama bonds, as Congress has given the Treasury permission to sell $135,000,000 for canal funds. Up till this time only $50,000,000 had been sold.

More Evidence of False Count to Aid Fitzgerald

EVIDENCE accumulates to prove that Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was cut by Democrats in the primaries more than the Election Board returns show. To lessen the public effect of the amazing revolt of his party against the Mayor every vote cast for a mayoralty nominee in many precincts was counted for Fitzgerald, regardless of the name of John A. Coulthurst or any other citizen being written in, or regardless of the mayoralty ballot being a blank.

Read what one citizen says:

Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN:

In reading the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN I find that the votes were counted in Precinct 7 of Ward 13, Mayor Fitzgerald received 304 votes out of a total of 304 cast. As I did not cast my vote for him, but simply drew a line through his name, I would like to have my vote so recorded. Hoping you will publish this for the benefit of those who did not cast their ballots for Mayor Fitzgerald, I remain, yours truly,

EMBEZZLER LINCOLN GETS 4-YEAR SENTENCE

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 18.—Levi C. Lincoln was to-day sentenced to serve four years in State prison by Judge Mumford in the Supreme Court for the embezzlement of $52,500 from the Woonsocket Electric Machine & Power Company, of which he was treasurer and general manager.

This is the lightest sentence for a large defalcation ever given in the Rhode Island courts. Lincoln, just previous to his arrest on the night of April 30, confessed to stealing $92,000 from his company at intervals extending over fifteen years. Through the sale of his beautiful home and other property he made restitution of about $40,000.

The defendant pleaded guilty, and the only move made by the defence was the plea for clemency made by his attorney, former Mayor George W. Greene. Attorney-General Greenough joined in asking that a light sentence be pronounced by the court, in view of Lincoln's confession and restitution and the serious illness of the prisoner's wife and daughter as the result of worry.

Both are penniless.

By good behavior Lincoln may reduce his sentence by about four months. He was given two years on each of two counts charging embezzlement of $42,000 and $10,000 respectively. The sentence will be served in the Providence County Jail at Cranston, to which he was taken to-day.

MOTHER DIES AT SEA; BABY HERE ALONE

All alone among strangers in a foreign land, with her mother asleep forever far beneath the surging waves of the Atlantic, three-year-old Beatrice Young of Dundee, Scotland, is to-day crying, "I want my mamma," while stock-stunned sailors aboard the Allan liner Laurentian tenderly strive to comfort the orphaned child.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Young, died at sea last Tuesday of pneumonia, and her body, sewed in canvas and weighted with shot, was consigned to the deep after a burial service by the Rev. C. C. Corning of Toronto, a passenger. During the solemn ceremony, the engines were stilled and the big steamship drifted at will.

Mrs. Young and her child were married with her only child at Glasgow on the 6th. She was on her way to join her husband at South Lorraine, N. Y., who has been in America some months, saving enough to bring his little family over the ocean.

The immigration officials have notified him of his wife's death. Mr. and Mrs. Neal Morrison of West Park, N. Y., only twenty miles distant, have offered to take the little motherless girl to their home, but he is willing.

The Laurentian docked at 9 o'clock to-day. She brought fifty cabin passengers. Mrs. Young and her daughter were embarking in the saloon. There were 232 in the steerage.

DEATH ENDED NEW BEDFORD HOTEL FIGHT

HUNT KNIFE TO-DAY

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 18.—As a result of a row, which it is said started in the Ancora Hotel, Frank Souza was stabbed to death while John Costa is held charged with the crime and Frank Luce is being detained as a witness.

The men are weavers and are all employed at the Christmas mills and the police are today working on the theory that the men have some bitter enemies for some time and hint that a woman was the cause of the tragedy.

The story of the stabbing, as given out by the police, is to the effect that the men, together with some friends, were guests at the hotel during the afternoon, and became involved in some kind of an argument.

They went home to supper, but returned and outside the hotel again took up the quarrel which resulted in the stabbing. Costa and Luce were together and their stories vary as to the cause. One witness says that the first he knew of the stabbing was when Souza fell to the ground, muttering, "I'm cut. He cut me with a knife."

South Water street was crowded at the time and Costa was captured by Policeman John H. Fay after a struggle.

He was taken to the station house, but denied the stabbing, and declared that Luce was the one who did it, but the police say they have good proof that Costa is the guilty party. The knife with which the cutting was done is being sought and the officers are now trying to find it.

After Costa and Luce had been taken to the police station, Souza was removed to his home at No. 10 Howland street, and a doctor summoned, who advised his removal to the hospital.

An ambulance was called and he was driven to St. Luke's Hospital, but was dead before arriving at the institution.

KENNEDY MAY SUE LINEHAN FOR CHARGES

John F. Kennedy, the Central Labor Union representative on the Boston Finance Commission, has asked that organization to investigate the charge made by Senator Frank I. Linehan at South Boston rallies that Kennedy had sought a bribe in connection with the probe of the Atlas Construction Company's Deer Island work.

At the meeting of the union yesterday afternoon in Wells Memorial Hall a communication was read from Mr. Kennedy by Secretary Henry Abrahams, asking that a committee be appointed to investigate the charges made against him "on the public platform."

There was no discussion, the matter being referred at once to the executive committee.

Mr. Kennedy, who is business agent of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union, has already instituted suit against Linehan for the charge the latter made against him. By the night of November 10 the Senator had hired halls for the purpose of replying to the Finance Commission, but what Kennedy went to Manager Frank Connor of the Atlas Construction Company, Linehan's partner, and sought a bribe to keep silence, according to the charges, the minority investigation of the company's contract for building the wall across Deer Island, Linehan will be asked to call the records of the other members of the commission.

The incident will not be allowed to close here, declared Mr. Kennedy the day after the attack. "I cannot say just what legal action I shall take, but Senator Linehan will hear from me."

Kennedy denies absolutely Linehan's charges, and says he had a conversation with Connor only in the presence of two witnesses who will substantiate what he says.

STARVING CREW DRIFTS DAYS IN LEAKING BOAT

Adrift for two days and nights in a leaky rowboat, buffeted by the waves and suffering from hunger and thirst and the cold, was the experience of the crew of the British schooner Louie of Lunenburg, N. S., which has been landed in Boston by the fishing schooner Mattakeesett. The men, half crazed by pain, with their hands and feet blistering from wind and salt water and constantly bailing in order to keep the overboat afloat, drifted between Cape Ann and Cape Cod, from the time their schooner suddenly sank beneath the waves, last Thursday morning, until their rescue by the Mattakeesett yesterday. The Louie was so quickly that the crew were unable to even secure clothing in their quarters.

Fifty Miles From Land.

When the schooner sank they were fifty miles from land, without compass and with only one pair of oars. The jug of water and the six pounds of salt pork stowed in the big boat were lost and they had neither food nor drink.

The dory was overcrowded and did not ride buoyantly upon the waves, but sank into them, half filling as each wave broke over her. The water was bitterly cold and the wind keen. Late in the afternoon they began to form on the side of the boat, but the men were perspiring from rowing and bailing and the bottom of the dory gave way and then they had a leaky boat beneath them.

Friday the dawn found them wild-eyed, moaning and screaming for food and water, but nothing greeted their eyes save a cape of the shore, showing that the gale had grown no calmer. Captain Himmelman, the first to succumb, died at sea, prepared to weave it if they should sight a vessel. None came near until Tuesday.

The drowned men are Captain Joseph Himmelman, Mate J. E. Tanner, Cook Morris Randall and Seamen Fred Lohnberg, Seaman Fred Wowack of Germany and William Plant of Wales.

William Plant, able seaman, was asleep in his bunk when the cry of "all hands on deck" aroused him, and he came rushing up in his lone feet, with only shirt and trousers on. Just as he was he was obliged to take to the boat with the others.

HIBBARD TOOL OF LODGE, DECLARES FITZGERALD

POSTMASTER'S CANDIDACY EVIDENCE OF FEDERAL INTEFERENCE, HE SAYS.

Mayor Fitzgerald, as Democratic candidate for re-election, runs Postmaster George A. Hibbard, Republican nominee for Mayor, as the opening note of his campaign.

Fitzgerald says that Hibbard is the political tool of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Fitzgerald says that "Boss" Lodge would use Hibbard as a dummy if the postmaster is elected Mayor.

Fitzgerald says that to show his good faith as a candidate Hibbard has resigned the postmastership and not be seeking a new office while hanging on to another as a sure thing.

Fitzgerald says that Hibbard's candidacy introduces an attempt to have Federal control of Boston's City Hall brought about; that Hibbard's power of distributing federal patronage as postmaster is the real reason why machine Republicans favored his nomination.

"Federal Interference."

Fitzgerald says that the Good Government Association refused to endorse Hibbard because he is and always has been a machine Republican of the narrow type.

Fitzgerald says that Lodge is using Hibbard in the attempt to get control of Boston.

Fitzgerald says that the attempt of Lodge is shown in the activity of Secretary Mansfield of the Republican State Committee in the Hibbard campaign.

Fitzgerald says that Hibbard's record in the Legislature in 1904-05 shows he is unfit to be Mayor.

Fitzgerald says that Hibbard is a weak man and not of the mayoralty calibre, as far as personal ability is concerned, and that he can't think that any citizen of Boston, who is well informed on the character, record and affiliations of Postmaster Hibbard, can believe that the latter possesses either the ability or the experience personally to administer the office of Mayor of Boston.

"Promises Are Bluff."

Fitzgerald says: "If the people of Boston want a Mayor who would simply be a dummy for the Republican machine and for Senator Lodge, they should elect Mr. Hibbard."

Fitzgerald says the non-partisan promises of Hibbard are bluffs.

AUTO CRUSHES OUT BOY'S LIFE; SPEEDS AWAY

Special to the Boston American.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., Nov. 18.—Every policeman in the State is searching for the big red touring automobile which ran into four boys on Broad and Cross streets here at dusk yesterday afternoon, killing Elmer Buck, ten years old, injuring nine of the others and then speeding away at a terrific rate.

The lads were members of the Junior Epworth League and were returning from church when the tragedy occurred.

There were two men in the auto, which was going at a high speed, and they never stopped for an instant. Dashing away into the darkness, it disappeared before its license number could be taken. Word was sent out immediately to all neighboring towns and cities, and later throughout the State to hold up the auto described by witnesses of the accident. It is supposed that the lamps were broken when the auto struck the boys. Scattered glass was found in its track.

Intense indignation prevailed here when the news spread. Many blamed the city government because of the policy of not lighting electric street lamps on moonlight nights. It is believed that had the streets been illuminated the number of the car would have been seen. The car was speeding a horse and wagon when it ran toward the curb and into the group of children. They had no warning.

Elmer Buck, who is the son of Herbert Buck of No. 22 Jenks street, was knocked down and the wheel passed over his body. His skull was crushed and an arm was broken. The other boys were only slightly injured. Within a few moments there were 1,000 persons at the scene of the disaster. If the occupants of the auto had fallen into the hands of the mob it would have fared hard with them.

Meanwhile the local police had begun to telephone in all directions to have a big red touring car with a broken lamp stopped if seen. But it was many miles away before word reached policemen and constables in other places. Several autos were held up in different parts of the State, but the occupants satisfied the officers that they were not in the car wanted.

BREAK IN WATER SUPPLY.

WESTBORO, Nov. 18.—Westboro was shut off from the town water supply yesterday for two hours because of a large break in one of the large mains between the centre and reservoir.

Warfare.

When two nations engage in deadly conflict the world regards him as a public enemy. When a battle takes place the heroism of the victors becomes the theme of song and story, the names of the heroes are engraven upon the tablet of fame, and the dead, the victims of their nation's cause, are mourned by the nation. The greatest warfare is waged by disease. It is a conflict that never ends, and the entire world constitutes a single battlefield. To successfully meet the dangerous foe the body must be in a healthy condition, the blood must be free of all impurities, and the system cleansed of all foreign matter. HEALTH BOARD WARNS 40 SPENCER DAIRYMEN

MILK PRODUCERS CHARGE BRIGHAM COMPANY WITH MAKING COMPLAINTS.

While the milk producers' committee of Worcester County farmers declares that it intends to proceed before Attorney General Malone for the removal of Dr. Charles Harrington, secretary of the State Board of Health, Dr. Harrington has sent a communication to the Spencer Board of Health demanding that forty farmers in that town make improvements in their dairies to conform to the sanitary rules of the State Board.

This is the latest development in the war between the Worcester county producers and the Boston contractors. The Worcester county farmers decided to boycott the C. Brigham & Co., one of the Boston contractors, signed frequently by the Spencer town officials and that, while the forty farmers who received the complaints recently sent milk to the Brigham firm, they have not done so since November 10, when they withdrew their supply from Boston because the contractors refused to pay them more than 3½ cents a can for their product.

Simultaneously with this occurrence, the firm of C. Brigham & Co., of Cambridge, issued the statement that the Boston trolley cars to-day, this statement:

"Demands High Standard."

"The health of Massachusetts demand a high standard and a rigid inspection of milk. We sell only milk from farms in Massachusetts.

These circumstances are taken to indicate that the Boston contractors now intend to fight back against the producers by complaining of the condition of their milk, in cases where the contractors can obtain a basis of complaint.

This move follows the house-to-house canvass of the contractors, in an effort to get consumers to take milk at 7, 8 or 9 cents a quart, and the Worcester County producers declare that it is done to take the milk away from the prospered independent milk company of Worcester County, the organization of which was caused Saturday by a complaint from the Boston market.

The Worcester county committee has asked the farmers of Massachusetts to send it information of any cases where they have been mistreated by any consumer or any State officer, either the contractor or any State officer. The committee promises to use the information in its campaign.

May Ask State Protection.

The present milk war threatens to involve into legal action, many of the farmers who are now on the verge of bankruptcy because of the attitude of the Milk Trust.

Chairman C. W. Woods of the committee of sixteen who are to form an independent milk company to oust the Milk Trust of Boston if possible, in a statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day says:

"The Spencer complaints plainly show the hands of the Milk Trust in Boston. It is true that many of the farmers in Massachusetts are not keeping their farms up to requirements, but they are unable to do the work with the money they are getting for their milk.

"We intend to demand the Legislature of Massachusetts determine what is pure milk and have them fix the price. If the producers are protected from the State instead of being bulldozed they will be able to comply with the law at all times and make a living.

Warning to Milk Users.

"The milk question is of the utmost importance to the entire country. The milk seller does not take into consideration the health effects of impure milk and with his protection sells milk that causes disease.

"Until the Legislature of Massachusetts takes into their own hands the question of milk and treats it from the standpoint of health, instead of to the advantage of the Milk Trust, the people should boycott the milk. This is especially urged in the case of where it is for the use of children.

"While we are not prepared to give to the public our evidence against Dr. Harrington, whom we accuse of being directly responsible for the present milk situation, we do intend to take steps to try and get him from office.

"The independents contend that the present standard on milk in its relationship to butter-fat should be revoked as milk of butter-fat at 3 per cent. rather than 4 per cent. is now allowable is much better, from a health view for small children and animals than the three and seven-tenths per cent. standard.

Threat to Cut Off Supply.

The milk producers of Hutton who went to Worcester expecting to be paid thirty-seven cents for their milk were utterly astonished when they found that they were only given checks for thirty products at the rate of thirty-four and one-half cents a can.

The Worcester Dairy Company states that owing to the present milk war the sale of milk has fallen off considerably, and it was voted that sixteen per cent. of the loss be slashed up to the farmers.

It was agreed by the producers that they would send milk to Worcester for the coming month. At the end of that time if they did not receive their regular price of at least thirty-seven cents a can the supply will be cut off.

The farmers are loath to talk of the matter, as they have been warned that if they make any protestations through the press the price of milk to them will go down instead of up.

FIND STARVED COWS DEAD AND DYING IN CAR

NORTH ADAMS, Nov. 18.—Following information that the cattle in a car passing over the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine had not been fed or watered for days, the car was detached. It was found that two of the cows and twelve of the calves had died and that one of the cows had calved. Huddled in the corners in starving condition were five calves, twenty-four cows and a bull, terribly emaciated. The dying cow was shot and the living ones taken out and cared for and watered.

About a quarter ton of hay was thrown into the car and the cows separated as if it had been carried away by a wind. A horse was also saved in two pens that were filled with water, which was drunk up as fast as it was poured in. The cattle were in a terribly weakened condition, hard to get on their feet.

The cattle were reshipped, the mother cows and their calves in one car, the cows that had no calves in another and the older motherless calves in a separate car also.

DIES OF OLD AGE.

Joseph Forristall, eighty-six, of No. 83 Prospect street, Cambridge, died last night of old age. He was a native of Ireland and had one son, with whom he lived, Patrolman James Forristall of the Cambridge force.

FRENCHMEN INCENSED AT WHITE'S ACT

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The traditional friendship of the two great republics, France and the United States, has been given a rude jolt by the presence, though unofficial, of Henry White, American Ambassador to the French Republic, at the wedding of Princess Louisa of Orleans to Prince Charles of Bourbon at Wood Norton.

It is declared on all sides that Ambassador White is guilty of a breach of diplomatic decorum, as the wedding ceremonial was carefully mapped out and carried out as a royalist demonstration against the French Republic.

In diplomatic circles it is considered certain that the recall of Ambassador White is but a matter of time, as his latest act made him persona non grata to the French foreign ministry.

The Paris papers in to-day's issues ridicule the Yankee diplomat, who, sent by a republican government to a sister republic, turns out to be a "royalist than the king," and the fact is pointed out that as great was the desire on the part of the other powers not to offend France that their ambassador to Berlin explained that they would go to the wedding only in attendance as royal bourgeois of their nations, who, being related to the bride and groom, had no official part in the ceremony.

The absence of Whitelaw Reid, who, after first accepting an invitation to the wedding, afterward cited an important engagement, is freely cited as an instance of what a true diplomat should have done under the circumstances, and the fact that King Edward studiously boycotted the affair for fear of offending the French nation only adds to the offense of Ambassador White in the eyes of all Frenchmen.

MAURETANIA LEADS RECORD OF LUSITANIA

QUEENSTOWN, Ire., Nov. 18.—The last heard from the new Cunarder Mauretania, now on her maiden transatlantic voyage, was a wireless message at 10 o'clock last night, when the ship was 207 miles west of Fastnet Rock, and making an average of 24 1-11 knots, the equivalent to 27.24 land miles, or a knot an hour better than the Lusitania's record. The vessel is reported as very steady, though the weather has not been good thus far and the swell is heavy.

PHELAN SURE OF WINNING FOR COUNCIL

Thomas F. Phelan, the nominee of the Independence League for the Common Council in Ward 17, is receiving the assurance of his large circle of friends in the district that they will work night and day to land him a winner on election day.

Mr. Phelan is one of the cleanest young men in the ward and his integrity has never been questioned.

During the last Senatorial contest the Democratic and Republican voters of the ward prevailed upon Mr. Phelan to withdraw as a candidate for the Senate in favor of the Hon. Michael J. Ward. With due regard to their wishes Mr. Phelan bowed to their request and at the election day Mr. McEttrick was elected a member of the Massachusetts Senate.

For this generous act the people of the district declare they will only be the more apt for the candidacy of Mr. Phelan.

In the recent primaries Mr. Phelan received 407 votes as a candidate of the Independence League for the Common Council. Many of them were Democrats who could not participate in the Independence League primaries. His friends claim that the showing made indicates that he will be the next Councilman from Ward 17.

PASTOR LAUDS UNIONISM AT C.L.U. MEETING

Wage-Earner the Best Judge of His Needs, Says Rev. C. S. MacFarland.

OTHER CLERGYMEN THERE

The Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, pastor of a Congregational church in Norwalk, at the first occasion of the appearance of ministerial delegates at the Boston Central Labor Union, made an address at yesterday afternoon's meeting, in which he gave hearty praise to the general principles of unionism. He was greeted with enthusiastic applause by the assembled delegates. The Methodist ministers who were recently invited by the Central Labor Union to send delegates to the body were represented by the Rev. Dillon Bronson of Brookline and the Rev. William Rice Newhall of Somerville.

"The best basis of the needs and rights of the wage-earner is the wage-earner himself. What is this but to say that the poet can best appreciate poetry and the musician music?

"I am a profound religious believer in the righteousness, the wisdom, the necessity and the eternal future of the labor union movement.

"Of course, this does not mean, and it would be foolish if it did mean, that I stand ready to approve everything that has been done in its name or supposed interest. It does not mean that I do not exhibit there ever was a strike that was unwise or unjust.

"But these mistakes afford no excuse to the laboring man who does not join his union. These non-union men are as foolish and inconsistent as some of you men who turn your backs on the Christian church. You are both wrong and illogical.

"On its side the church must abandon its unprofitable controversies over doctrines of a life to come and give itself heart and soul to present actual human needs. I see no mediator, no final arbiter except the gospel of the brotherhood of love."

NEWS OF LABOR.

Ship, Machine and Derrick Riggers will be addressed by Vice-President Hynes of the Boston Central Labor Union at their educational hour, Thursday night, in East Boston. Fifteen new members will be initiated.

The Boston Central Labor Union approved the application for delegates to the union made by the Congregational Ministers' Association, and voted to admit them, with voice, but no vote.

President Patrick Maloney, Secretary Henry Abrahams, Treasurer P. H. Sweet and Delegate F. D. Daley of the Boston Central Labor Union were appointed a committee to meet and entertain D. J. Shackleton, M. P., and wife, fraternal delegate from the English Trades Union Congress to the American Federation of Labor convention in Norfolk, Va.

It was reported at the regular meeting of Boilermakers' Lodge, No. 9, yesterday that all members were now receiving the scale. McDonald, Peter Kennedy and Patrick Clemence have been appointed a committee to arrange for a complimentary testimonial to President John J. Barbers' Union No. 182 will hold a special meeting Tuesday night at No. 995 Washington street. Yesterday the union voted a death benefit for the late John F. Haughy, who died in Dover, N. H. President Mallen and Secretary O'Donnell were appointed a committee to go to Dover and pay the benefit to his heirs or relatives.

All the firemen employed by the city of Boston will meet next Wednesday night at 8 p. m. at No. 987 Washington street to hear the decision of the Mayor in regard to the new schedule, and to determine what action the union shall take. This action will be based on the decision which the Mayor sends in to the union.

A Chance to Help in the Fight Against Graft

Boston citizens who really believe in the election of a Mayor this year who will turn out grafters and who will run the government of the municipality on a honest basis have an opportunity to measure the depth of their sincerity in a cash contribution to the campaign fund of John A. Coulthurst.

This is a poor man's campaign against men who have become rich in public service. Against Mr. Coulthurst will be thrown the force of thousands of political promises in conjunction with the expenditure of unlimited money. The Independence League and Mr. Coulthurst are practically without financial resources.

So expensive have campaigns become in this city that a poor man, such as Mr. Coulthurst is, is practically barred from making a race for the mayoralty. Certain expenses are actually necessary, and it is no more than right that citizens who want an honest man in the City Hall should help to bring about his election.

Money expended in this way would be money well invested. The elevation of such a man as John A. Coulthurst to the head of the city government should appeal both to the financial and moral sense of the people of the city.

Any one who cares to make a contribution, large or small, should hand it or send it to A. L. Leeman, treasurer of the Boston City Committee of the Independence League, Room No. 348 Old South Building, No. 294 Washington street, Boston. A receipt will be given for the contribution, and it will be acknowledged through the columns of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Any contributor may rest assured that the money will be wisely used for perfectly legitimate expenses of the campaign.

Independence League City Committee.

JOHN M. PEASE, Secretary.

Boston's city debt has increased five million dollars under Mayor Fitzgerald. It now amounts to $1,000 for every registered voter in the city.

COULTHURST OPENS LEAGUE'S CITY FIGHT

CANDIDATE FOR MAYORALTY SOUNDS KEY-NOTE OF CAMPAIGN IN STRONG SPEECH.

The battle to elect John A. Coulthurst, Independence League candidate for Mayor of Boston, is now on and will be fought with the utmost vigor every day and night until the balloting is over at the municipal election on December 10.

It is a campaign to drive graft and grafters out of City Hall and save the city from the effects of more Fitzgeraldism.

The keynote of the campaign was uttered by John A. Coulthurst at an enthusiastic meeting yesterday of the League city committee at its headquarters in the Old South Building. Chairman Robert T. Allen presided.

Mr. Coulthurst's address awoke every hearer to a full realization of the need of a change in the administration of city affairs.

He stirred the assembly to the highest pitch of enthusiasm with his address, and the older men present, those who have watched political conditions for years, were at once in proclaiming that Mr. Coulthurst was one of the most forceful and convincing speakers they had ever heard.

"This is a poor man's campaign," said the League's Mayoralty candidate. We have no money to spend, but we have a cause and it is a cause that will triumph.

Will Expose Fitzgerald Rule.

"The Mayor of Boston is already at work on his plans for a re-election. He has declared that he will spend a barrel of money to obtain that re-election.

"He has declared, too, that he will bring his administration with him, every ward in the city. Let me say right here that we, too, will bring his administration on the stump with us.

"We will expose its long trail of broken promises. We will expose his administration in its true light, without the embellishments with which the Mayor is able to endow it.

"No head of this municipality ever had so golden an opportunity to prove his worth to the people as our present executive. He realized that opportunity two years ago when he went from ward to ward and promised the voters that he would bring about a reform in the conduct of the city's business.

Extravagant Economy.

"He knew and he realized the huge debt under which Boston was struggling. He promised to cut down that debt for the wage-earners, who, he truly said, were the real taxpayers of this city. He said, and he was right in the judgment, that the rent payers were the ones who had to bear the brunt of taxes. He promised to lighten their burden.

"Instead of living up to his promises, my friends, what has he done? He has consented to and approved of an increase of $5,000,000 in the city's debt. Is that what he promised to do, my friends?

"Did he fulfill his promise to you when he stowed through his legislature toll bills? He fully realized the extent of the debt at that time, but instead of trying to lighten it he was extravagant.

A Poor Man's Campaign.

"Instead of appointing as heads of departments men who were qualified by experience and ability whom did he choose? Look over the lists of department heads and you will find that they are crammed with political henchmen of our present executive.

"I wish to impress upon you the importance of getting to work at once in your effort to elect your candidate. Our plans should be there.

"We shall not hold rallies in every ward in the city because that would require the expenditure of much money and this is a poor man's campaign. We will not spend money from persons to whom such action would place us under obligations.

"We shall, however, go into every section of the city and address the people. And we shall hold a great public meeting in Faneuil Hall, the birthplace of American independence.

Work Together for Victory.

"We do not want a machine. The last State election showed clearly of how little value is a political machine, when the Independence League, without a machine, rolled up an magnificent a vote.

"If we work together our cause will win, your candidate will be elected, and there will be an end to Fitzgeraldism in City Hall."

Reports were read by the chairmen of the several wards and suggestions were made as to the method of conducting the city campaign.

SURGERY MAY SAVE WOMAN 31 DAYS IN COMA

By an operation which the physicians at the City Hospital declare will be the most interesting ever performed there, it is hoped to-day to rescue to consciousness Mary Anthony, who has lain in a coma for thirty-one days, following an automobile accident on Dartmouth street bridge. She is now off the dangerous list.

For a month the unfortunate woman has been unconscious. Her case is remarkable. Her sleep has been the longest on record at the City Hospital, although several cases of longer unconscious periods have been recorded elsewhere.

The surgeons declare that if Miss Anthony was conscious the pain and shock of to-day's operation would likely be fatal. After a thorough study of the case, however, they concluded that this operation would doubtless restore her to her senses and save her life. They waited until this time to permit the patient's heart to gain as much strength as possible. They were encouraged by the fact, that notwithstanding her astonishing coma, she took nourishment and continued in good physical condition.

Several times during the long sleep the patient has manifested knowledge that the physicians have never been able to catch the words and say hopes they had that these efforts presaged a restoration of consciousness were dashed by the immediate relapse.

Miss Anthony, who came from Taunton, lives at No. 15 Cazenove street, Boston. She is about forty-five years old. At the time of the accident she was in charge of the S. F. C. A. booth at the Food Fair, then in progress at the Mechanics building in Huntington avenue.

NAVY YARDS HURRY WORK ON BIG FLEET

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Five of the sixteen Big American battleships that are to start on the much heralded cruise to the Antipodes, December 16, are now at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, receiving the final touches.

The Connecticut, Rear Admiral Rodgers' flagship, was taken out of drydock yesterday, her sides glistening with fresh white paint. Her bilge keels had been strengthened and her propellers, rudder and rudderpost sharply inspected.

The battleship Ohio will be drydocked to-day. Most of the ships here, as well as the others of the fleet scattered among the yards of Norfolk, Boston and League Island, are receiving their heavier ammunition and stores. When it is known that in potatoes alone each ship is expected to carry 500,000 pounds, the vast amount of provisions needed for the crews of 800 men each on this voyage of 12,000 miles may be appreciated.

Eleven, and possibly twelve, of the fleet will rendezvous in New York harbor prior to December 1, whence the start to San Francisco will be made, after a review of the assembled ships by President Roosevelt.

The Louisiana, the Rhode Island and the Alabama, Admiral Sperry's flagship of the fourth division, are also undergoing repairs at Brooklyn. The battleship Virginia is expected shortly from Norfolk, and will be followed in basin No. 3 by the Minnesota, fresh from the mechanics' hands at Norfolk.

WOMAN JUMPS TO DEATH IN STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Mary Mitchell jumped from the second-story fire escape in front of the Salvation Army Hotel in the Bowery to-day into a nest of workmen and women on their way to work, narrowly missing several in her fall, and was killed on the sidewalk in the midst of the crowd. She was about thirty-five years of age.

DORCHESTER GIRL IS MILTON MAN'S BRIDE

The marriage of Joseph A. Rein of Milton to Mary T. Duffy of Dorchester was solemnized at the German Catholic church on Shawmut avenue yesterday afternoon. Frank H. Rein officiated as best man and Lena Gaines served as the bridesmaid. After a wedding trip through the South Mr. and Mrs. Rein will reside at No. 76 Brush Hill road, Mattapan.

HOWARD GOULD DOES NOT GIVE MONEY TO WIFE

—CLARENCE J. SHEARN

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Howard Gould in her divorce suit, says:

"The statement in Mr. Gould's advertisement that he is furnishing Mrs. Gould an allowance for her support is not true. During the past year Mrs. Gould has not received one dollar from her husband. Furthermore, Mr. Gould has refused to pay bills incurred for mere necessaries of life and has permitted Mrs. Gould to be sued for such bills.

"His own rented Castle Gould and retained all the proceeds, although practically all the personal property on the place has been bought by Mrs. Gould and paid for by her out of her allowance.

"Beyond paying part of a bill at the St. Regis dating back to the time when they lived there together and discharging certain old bills when threatened to be sued, Mr. Gould has not, so far as Mrs. Gould is aware, contributed anything to her support.

"In view of these facts, it is difficult to understand the published statement attributed to Mr. Nicol that Mrs. Gould is receiving a handsome allowance approximating $5,000 a month, or the advertisement purporting to be signed by Mr. Gould is furnished by me with funds sufficient for necessaries and reasonable requirements."

HOSPITAL PATIENT SUICIDE WITH RAZOR

FALL RIVER, Nov. 18.—Timothy Sheas, fifty-two years of age, residing at 172 Robeson street, Fall River, committed suicide at Lie Fall River City Hospital yesterday, severing his throat with a razor. Sheas was arrested shortly before midnight Saturday night for drunkenness. His condition was such that he was later taken to the City Hospital, where he arose from his bed and found the weapon with which he ended his life.

CAMBRIDGE FIRE CHIEF NEAR DEATH

With His Driver, Bunker Is Hurled From Light Wagon Responding to Alarm.

Fire Chief Bunker of Cambridge and his driver, William Atkinson, had a narrow escape from death at dawn to-day while responding to an alarm sounded because of an incendiary fire. Both were thrown from their light wagon, which was crushed, and were badly bruised and shaken up. Chief Bunker is sixty years old, but insisted on going to the fire, which destroyed Farrell's boathouse and a four-car shed.

Atkinson was speeding his horse at its fastest gait down Brookline street toward the boathouse, which stood on the banks of the Charles River, near the bridge to Brookline, when he saw truck No. 1, the biggest in the Cambridge fire department, rolling down Putnam avenue as fast as its three-horse hitch could haul it. It looked for a moment as though the great truck would run over the chief's wagon and crush it like an eggshell.

But both Atkinson and Driver John Anderson of the truck kept their nerve. Anderson turned to the right and Atkinson drove straight onto the sidewalk. His horse struck a tree, and chief and driver were pitched headlong from the seat just as the great truck thundered by like an express train.

It is believed that river pirates set the fire in the boathouse.

MOTHER PRAISES INJURED HALFBACK

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—Although J. E. Ingersoll, the plucky Dartmouth halfback who was injured in the game with Harvard Saturday, is badly hurt, his mother here, Mrs. A. P. Ingersoll, is not worrying about him.

"I'm glad he played the game through and that he helped defeat Harvard," she says. "He will come out all right."

15 LONG BEACH COTTAGES GO UP IN FLAMES

While Firemen Fight Blaze Another Starts on Big Farm Five Miles Away.

ROCKPORT, Nov. 18.—While the fire departments of Rockport and Gloucester were fighting a fire which destroyed fifteen cottages at Long Beach and caused damage of $20,000, another blaze broke out among the buildings on the Babson farm at Pigeon Cove, five miles away, and destroyed a large barn, burned to death twelve cows and caused damage of $6,000. The cottages at Long Beach were owned mostly by Rockport and Gloucester people and were unoccupied. The flames had made great headway before being discovered by Seth Griffin and his sons, who were in a cottage near the Rockport-Gloucester line.

Marsh and sand made it impossible for the fire apparatus to reach the cottages and a bucket brigade was obliged to do the fighting. The flames were kept from spreading by the use of bedding soaked in water and spread over the roofs of cottages not already on fire. The fire is believed to be of incendiary origin. The damage at the Babson farm is covered by insurance. The property is owned by the Rockport Granite Company.

SUES WOMAN HE SAYS ENTICED SON AWAY

WORCESTER, Nov. 18.—A most unusual suit has come to light here in an action brought against Mrs. Frank Gero of Boylston by Fred L. Saunders of Worcester.

In his declaration Saunders charges that Mrs. Gero enticed his son away from him, thereby depriving him of his services. He sues for $500 for loss of his son's services.

This suit, which has caused a sensation in Clinton, Boylston and Greendale, a suburb of Worcester, is to be tried in Clinton on next Saturday.

DOG WALKS AROUND WITH A WOODEN LEG

GARDNER, Nov. 18.—The unusual spectacle of a dog with a wooden leg is the latest in this town. Frank S. Learned's shepherd dog had one of his front legs severely cut by a cutterbar. A veterinary amputated the limb. Learned made a wooden leg, which is doing admirable service for the canine.

APPEAL FOR AID IN HOME RULE FIGHT

Committee Recites Progress Toward Self-Government for Ireland.

SEE HOPE FOR FUTURE

The committee appointed by the United Irish League of Boston at the recent meeting in the Faneuil Street Parish house to address to the friends of the Irish home rule movement, and take steps to raise the $10,000 pledged for Boston at the meeting, met yesterday. Already a number of subscriptions have been sent in to members of the committee, and these with future subscriptions will be announced from time to time.

The address, which is signed by the subcommittee appointed to draft it by the general body, is, in part:

"Boston, Nov. 18, 1907.

"To the friends of Irish national self-government:—The rejection of the Birrell bill by the unanimous voice of the Irish people makes it necessary for us to renew our appeal for material assistance to lovers of liberty of every race in America.

"The Birrell bill is the third acknowledgment by the English government in twenty years of the inalienable right of Irishmen to govern themselves. Its introduction, therefore, marks the third time that the organized parliamentary party has extorted from an English Minister the concrete vindication of the national aims of this patriotic political fighting organization. Since the bill, unless its opponents power, military or otherwise, has been able to force even a confession from the government of England.

Sweeping Veto Power.

"But while confessing that Irishmen had the right to govern themselves, this bill gave an absolute power of veto to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. With such a power in the hands of the Lord Lieutenant, an Irish Parliament would be as helpless as the Russian Duma. This clause of itself made it impossible for the people of Ireland to accept the bill as a settlement of their claim for self-government.

Look to the Future.

"The people of Ireland with confidence then look to the future, and hope that every friend of Ireland in America will aid the movement at this time. We earnestly trust that you will be one of those to lend assistance the three remaining questions of education, financial relations and self-government will be speedily solved. Ireland will then alone see the commercial prosperity which free institutions alone guarantee. Subscriptions may be forwarded to any of the undersigned:

"J. Dillon, M. D., president Central Council, No. 121 Vernon street, Roxbury, Mass.

"P. J. Timmins, M. D., president Central Branch, No. 483 Broadway, South Boston, Mass.

"Denis O'Reilly, treasurer Central Council, No. 14 Thomas park, South Boston.

Don't Want to Get Thin; Gives Up Stage Career

Ethel Grant, girl who deserted stage because she was getting thin.

WORCESTER, Nov. 18.—Rather than stand the strain of an active career, which compelled her managers to keep her constantly engaged night after night, and which entered stage-life she weighed 103 pounds, but the strain behind the footlights pulled her down until she only tipped the scales at 80 pounds.

Miss Grant tells why she has forsaken art, because she was getting thin, as follows:

"I always wanted to be an actress and when I found that I could play a part and had a good voice I accepted an offer with the Malcolm Williams stock company. The work was hard, of course, as it is always at the theatre early and over on the alert to make my part pleasing.

"Of course I was up early and late. I always went direct home after the performance, but found I was gradually losing flesh.

"My face was getting thin and the pencil and rouge box lost for me my natural good complexion. I determined to leave the stage and find some other occupation.

"I have secured a position at the Worcester City Hospital and already feel that I am rapidly regaining my weight.

"I would advise all young girls to keep away from the rouge box and paints for the face. It is detrimental to their skin. Then the temperament of some girls like myself will not allow of their use.

"Girls, never follow a profession or a business that is injurious to your health—better that you give it up before the disease gets hold of you. Never hold to the idea that the disease will be only temporary, that you will soon get over it.

"Better that you get rid of the cause and save yourself before the germ grows into a bigger one and then into what might be death.

"I loved my profession, but something was wrong, and I diagnosed the cause and feel much better for it."

SOCIETY PAYS TRIBUTE TO HORSE AS KING TO-DAY

Four-Footed Actors Will Provide World's Play for Wealthy Fashion Leaders This Week.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The horse is again king of the day. He gets into his stride at 9 o'clock to-day at the Madison Square Garden and for the rest of the week society will pay tribute and appear in gold raiment.

When President Cornelius Fellowes, of the National Horse Show Association, took his seat yesterday at the preliminary luncheon given in the Garden, the Horse Show of 1907 was really opened. The toast of King Horse was drunk and the ball was all on the King.

Throughout the Garden, in the basement and the stalls on the first floor, were the four-footed actors who will provide the world's play.

In the tanbark there were grooms exercising pairs and singles, and there was that smell of new leather throughout the building that is one thing of a harness show.

At the opening luncheon it compared favorably with those of former years. The fact that money is not so plentiful as it was this year was commented on by Colonel Fellowes, but in spite of the fact that automobile is admitted, are going to crowd out the beloved horse out of the affections of these days.

Patrick Francis Murphy made the bit of the luncheon with his witty allusions to the horse world, art, finance and the part Ireland plays in each.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The feature of the Horse Show luncheon yesterday afternoon was the speech of Patrick Francis Murphy, who had delighted the guests at similar functions for many years by his inimitable wit and discussion of popular topics. His reference to American success on the English turf struck a responsive chord, but the shaft he discharged at the President elicited even greater applause.

Mr. Murphy said in part:

"The last week's eventful year—an International Horse Show has been established in London. The American Horse Show Association, with its board of foreign associates, has made a complete and peaceful conquest of 'Darkest England.' During the present century—with one exception—the winners of the English Derby have been ridden by American jockeys; and in 1907, for the first time, the Derby has been won by an American horse—from Ireland. This pleasing Irish-American interchange of transplanting the horse to Ireland, and the Hibernian to America, seems to improve 'the race.'

"Even the Gibson girl's nose has been put out of joint. The face of an Irish beauty has been selected by an artist to be commemorated on our new gold coins—and the artist who was chosen by the President—by a singular coincidence was born in Ireland himself. I mean the artist—not the President.

"The Independent Order of Americans with patriotic devotion proclaim with alarm' this revival of the Irish national emergency; that Ireland now had designs on the United States mint. In omitting from the coin, 'In God We Trust,' the responsibility is shifted, so we can now recognize unto Roosevelt, the things that are Roosevelt's, and to Roosevelt, the things that were theirs.

Deserve Hero Medals.

"The Americans who inaugurated the International Horse Show in London deserve medals from the Carnegie Hero Fund. They compelled the world to compare notes: where the jumpers from Spain and Belgium met the 'leppers' from Ireland. It is so cosmopolitan that, hereafter, it will be made compulsory for the English attendants to understand French, German and American.

"We have had explosive fireworks. Our President said he simply 'turned on the light;' unfortunately there had been a quantity of escaped gas. The heavens were hung in black; riches took their flight on imperial wings. Investments that 'one could sleep on' produced—insomnia. Conspicuous were made as to which was the more peaceful animal, a bull in a china shop, or a teddy bear in a gilt-edged market.

"Happily, difficulties are things that show what men are. American difficulties have produced the great Americans. It is not alone in the battle field that valor is displayed; courage may be shown even in the art library. No sounder piece of American manhood have been put together than the group of financial statuary that defended American credit.

"Morgan, the 'master builder,' discovered that the way to control circumstances, is to be the greater circumstance yourself. In the legion of Morgan's library there is no such word as 'fail.' On the contrary, the mails abundant streams of revenue gushed forth—no two cent tax dood scrape of Public Confidence they had brought there by wake. Slowly upon its feet and went about its business; and that place of blasting incident will hereafter be known as 'The House That Jack Built.'

No Loss Without Gain.

"But there is no loss without gain. We are now chaste by poverty and polished by adversity; the Horse Show boxes are moderate in price, and within the reach of the best families. That anvil chorus, called 'Teachings of a Simple Life,' has become transformed scarcity into the Simple Rich.' It seems slyly satirical—under present conditions—to tell the rich that there are many things in life better than money—when they have no money to buy them.

"Former owners of automobiles now regard the surface cars with interest—from the motor to the trailer it simply a train for of affection. It is surprising what one may do in this world, and like it. The Horse Show will go on undistressed. It is a refuge from thought, a sufferer life's inequalities. The horse, like indigestion, is a great leveller, for all men are equal on the turf—and under it."

IRISH HOME RULE IS NEAR

—Justin McCarthy.

Justin McCarthy, the Irish leader and historian, discusses "The Coming Political Crisis in England," in the Independent. He says:

"We are on the eve of a great political struggle. The vast majority of the people in these islands will sustain the Government against the House of Lords. Then, if the same Liberal Government should return to power, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and his colleagues will bring forward their measure of home rule, which, I have every reason to believe, will prove a genuine scheme of national self-government for my country and entirely unlike that poor little compromise offered not long since under the name of the Irish Councils bill."

HUB AUTOISTS AFTER RECORDS AT ORMOND

Louis Ross Building Car Which He Hopes Will Create a New Figure for Mile.

By J. C. KERRISON.

There is good reason to believe that a battle of the steamers will be witnessed at the coming Ormond meet. While the list of events for the big meeting in Florida has not as yet been announced, it will undoubtedly include events in which steamers will have as much opportunity to win as is accorded the gasoline cars.

In order to compete for the mile record the steamers will be compelled to travel at least 200 miles, which is considered as rather an exacting performance to expect from steam racing machines, such, for instance, as are able to travel the mile in record time.

Ross Building Car.

Nothing daunted, however, by such a condition, the makers of steamers have gone ahead to produce machines that will successfully meet all requirements in that direction. Louis Ross is now building a car which he is confident will be able to hold its own at any distance with any car in the country, and which will likewise travel the mile in record time. This car will be finished in season, and will be delivered for the southern tournament.

Although no official statement has come from Newton, it is understood that Chandler is likewise at work devising a steamer which will have long as well as short distance powers, and that this steamer will be driven by Fred Marriott, the daring motor who had such a narrow escape at the last meeting. It is to be hoped that the rumor is true, for it will mean that the two great steamer experts will engage in one of the most interesting passages at arms known in the history of the racing car in this country.

The long-distance events at Ormond will be more interesting than ever, owing to the determination of Messrs Anderson and Price, those two men who have done as much for motoring as any other two men in this country, to make the course more satisfactory. Instead of having the course up and down the beach, with a sudden turn at each end of the beach, loops are to be built, one at Ormond and the other at the inlet, some fifteen miles away. These loops are to be about a mile in length, and will be so constructed as to bring the cars some distance from the beach and into the towns at each end, the return to the beach being made about a half mile from the turning points.

Prices at Ormond.

John Anderson, who, heretofore, has been one of the moving spirits in the Ormond meet, will not be located at Ormond this year, he having received well deserved promotion, having been placed in charge of the Alcazar at St. Augustine, while Mr. Price has been given supervising charge of the affairs at Ormond. Both gentlemen, it will be seen, have charge of that which is their due. Although not permanently located at Ormond Mr. Anderson will keep in close touch with affairs there, and it will not be at all surprising if he should engineer a meet for St. Augustine, the following close upon Ormond.

HONOR MARTYRS OF MANCHESTER

At a special meeting of the County Dublin Club, held at No. 604 Washington street, Brighton, on Thursday evening, arrangements were made for the commemoration of the Irish United Kingdom and Manchester Martyrs to be held in St. Ross Hall, Worcester street, next Sunday evening, November 24. Hon. Augustine J. Daly will preside. Music will be furnished by the choir of the association. Solos by Lawrence Spain, Peter A. Conroy, John Linehan and John Bates.

FELIX ADLER ON SANCTITY OF THE MARRIAGE TIE

Deplores Frank Discussion of Sex Question in Plays, Novels and Poems.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A plea for the sanctity of the marriage tie was made by Dr. Felix Adler before the Society of Ethical Culture in Carnegie Hall, yesterday. He deplored the frankness with which the sex question is treated in modern plays, novels and poems and scored the trial marriage idea. The result of the assaults on the marriage tie, the error underlying it, he said, was a false understanding of the true nature of love.

"The hardest and worst thing in human life is an existence of loneliness," continued Dr. Adler, "and this is something that some people cannot escape," said Dr. Adler. "The world is filled with the wailing of the unattached. Sometimes their condition is due to bad luck and sometimes to inconsequency. They desire to be social and friendly, but somehow they repel other people.

"Love is an attempt of human beings to transcend this loneliness, if I were asked to describe hell I would describe it as a condemnation to wander through the deserts of eternity alone."

Love, Dr. Adler said, will not only endure hardship and privation, for the one loved, but it will sometimes impose hardships and privations.

The wife of the bankrupt will insist that her husband pay the last penny of his debts and it is because she loves him that she insists this can be done to make him worthy in her eyes and the eyes of others.

"I am astonished that these assaults and attacks upon marriage should be tolerated," he said, "and astonished that people who do not want the marriage institution should deal so lightly with the fire; that good, pure women should read these nasty and impure books. Why do they do it? Some say that it is due to a false desire to be acquainted with the most recent knowledge, to know real life—in a word to be up to date. There is the fear that they will be charged with not having read the latest that has come out. The greatest distinction, if you only know it, is not to be up to date. It was good advice to Horace when a new book comes out we should read an old one."

MAJ. HIGGINSON IS 73 TO-DAY

Major Henry L. Higginson, the millionaire banker-philanthropist, of the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., passed brisky across the street office to-day, seventy-three years young on his birthday anniversary. His natal day brought him numerous felicitations from his associates and hosts of friends, but this interchange alone detracted from the strenuousness of duties. His health was never better. His age hangs lightly.

Major Higginson was born in New York city, November 18, 1834. He is the best-known banker of Boston, a citizen of St. and his loyalty to his alma mater Harvard, is a matter of record throughout the States. He is particularly well known for his generous and liberal conditions of the Crimson undergraduates through his work in the Harvard Union.

VLADIVOSTOK, Nov. 18.—Secretary of War Taft and his party dined with General Irman to-day. The visitors have spent most of their time driving and visiting points of interest under the escort of Prince Sartatsky and Baron Suckow. The reception was very cordial, though the authorities fear outbreaks, of which their is constant danger, by revolutionaries.

The secretary and his suite will leave on a special car, accompanied by Russian military and naval aides, over the trans-Siberian railroad for St. Petersburg at 7 to-morrow morning.

EAST DOUGLAS, Nov. 18.—Mark Twain's "Eve's Diary," which was barred from many of the libraries in towns of Worcester County, is on the shelves of the new Simon Fairfield Library here, which has just opened.

Great surprise was manifest when this became known and threatened action is heard to eliminate the book with illustrations which offended certain patrons.

Smart Set Women Shudder in Shadow of Economy's Spectre

By Frances Savage

TIMES are so hard with the bankers, railroad presidents and trust company directors of New York that their wives, who compose the really important section of the Four Hundred, have been required to cut down their dressmaking bills for this season.

One very fashionable matron complains that it is an outrage that she can have only $50,000 worth of new gowns for the year! That's hard luck.

Can Get Along on $33,520

By the strictest economy in every direction, by reducing the number and cost of gowns at every point—and by haggling with the dressmaker—one matron of the Four Hundred finds that the very least she can get along with are ninety-five gowns, to cost $33,520—and then, she thinks, she will be a perfect disgrace in the eyes of her acquaintances.

Such are the facts, and as a result many a woman of New York's Four Hundred will consider herself a ragamuffin at the social gayeties of the elect this year, in comparison with what she was last year, when Consolidated Gas was selling at 200 and railroads were paying 8 and 10 per cent. dividends.

For the society woman who would keep pace with the Four Hundred must have a suitable gown for every occasion, whether it is coffee in her boudoir in the morning or a box at the opera in the evening.

She must have several gowns of each kind in a season, and for each gown suitable for outdoor wear, wraps and hats must be provided, sometimes as many as four or five for each gown. Also, there must be any number of odd hats and wraps.

Furs of every sort and description are in the wardrobe of the society woman, ermine, broadtail, mink and sable being the most popular.

Her gloves can be counted by the hundred pairs and her shoes by the dozen, the array of silk hosiery is endless and her silk petticoats are innumerable.

Ninety-five Gowns Lowest Estimate

No two society women have the same number of gowns, nor can they be valued the same. The boudoir gowns worn by the society woman may be as elaborate or as simple as she cares to make them, and she may have as few as three or as many as a dozen; and so it is with all of the other gowns. Here is how the list would look that was drawn up by the woman who expects to make $33,520 cover the bill:

5 Boudoir gowns	$330
4 Breakfast gowns	240
6 Morning gowns	360
3 Tea gowns	375
4 Morning street gowns	550
8 Luncheon gowns	1,575
4 Afternoon gowns	475
4 Promenade gowns	1,000
3 Driving gowns	275
2 Riding gowns	250
6 Reception gowns	1,500
6 Calling gowns	1,050
4 House gowns	400
3 At Home gowns	500
8 Dinner gowns	2,700
8 Evening gowns	1,600
8 Opera gowns	4,800
Shoes and gloves	600
Hats and furs	1,400
12 Ball gowns	8,600
Total	$33,520

So you can see why it is that when the Summer season is at an end, and the society woman of the Four Hundred realizes that the melancholy days have come when she must again do battle with the milliner, dressmaker and tailor, she sighs; but the gratitude worthy a better cause she returns to the city to begin an endless chain of visits to these makers of apparel, on and on, world without end, until the matter of clothes for a season is a thing accomplished.

So rapidly do the styles change that a woman must be ever on the alert to honor and obey Dame Fashion. From season to season, now, mode and all things pertaining to woman's dress undergo a complete revolution. To the modest little home body who adheres strictly to her tailor-made suits the worry, labor and heartbreak of the woman of the Four Hundred in search of clothes are things unknown.

Think of the tragedy, three weeks of trying labor over some particular gown, to learn that Mrs. Blank has one something like it but not much handsomer.

This is the simple age with members of the elect—a simplicity that produces effects the erstwhile magnificence could never attain.

In the matter of gowns for the woman of the Four Hundred a few years ago the foundation material of a creation did not mean much. It was the wonderful array of trimmings that made a dress beautiful, and gowns of a year or so ago were often made of the cheapest materials at once.

"Simplicity" Is the Thing

To-day, with the simplicity idea in mind, the groundwork of a gown is its most important factor. A dress today is a success according to its lines.

Long sweeping effects are to be desired in every sort of gown, and while all women, the Four Hundred included, display tenacity as she cares to make them, and she may have as few as three or as many as a dozen; and so it is with all of the other gowns. Here is how the list would look that we drawn up by the woman who expects to make $33,520 cover the bill:

Even in Hard Times Year a Matron in the "400"

Must Spend $33,520 on Dress

BACK VIEW OF $2,500 GOWN.

While one and all must follow, in a measure, the dictates of Dame Fashion, a woman of originality will bend the iron rules of style to fit her own particular case.

There are as many different modes of dressing as there are women in the Four Hundred. It would be quite impossible to speak of them in a general way.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, for example, are two dresses very plainly and conservatively gowned.

Mrs. Fish wide apart as the poles.

Mrs. Astor is at all times most elaborately and gorgeously gowned.

So you see, though one woman says she can make $33,520 cover her entire wardrobe, the average society woman will spend for gowns alone over $30,000. Her jewels, furs and the novelties she affects will easily make the sum come up to from $40,000 to $50,000, and that may be counted a fair estimate of the average sum of money expended by each society woman of the Four Hundred each season for the things absolutely necessary to her in her social rounds.

Man's Happiness Lies in Right Kind of Wife; ---by Beatrice Fairfax

you is to marry if you have met the

If you are in debt it is rankest folly to marry until the debt is fully paid.

Remember, when choosing a wife, that the girl who is overfond of dress will be likely to make the pennies fly, for love of dress is inborn and a woman seldom gets over it.

Thoughtfulness and common sense are, as "G. K." observes, excellent qualities in a wife.

Don't be carried away by a pretty face and a glib conversation. Go slowly and find out if there is a real woman under the gay exterior.

Naturally every man is proud of a pretty wife, but it takes more than mere prettiness to make a happy home. Don't forget that, young man.

Be Sure Girl Has Sympathy

The right kind of a wife is the one to whom a man can turn, in time of trouble or perplexity, sure of a ready sympathy and a quick comprehension.

She must be ready to meet adversity as well as prosperity, and to avoid the pitfalls of nagging and whining.

I wonder how many men there are in this city who dread the complaints that will greet them at the front door?

Think well before you marry a girl whose mouth droops at the corners. That drooping mouth may develop into peevishness in a few years, and I defy any home to be happy when ruled over by a peevish woman.

Look for the merry, sensible, wholesome girl, if she is pretty, so much the better. But, pretty or plain, she is the type of girl who will make the best wife and mother.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-seven years of age and keep house for my sister, nineteen-ing eight. My mother died a little over a year ago. In all our income amounts to $28 a week. I am able to serve good meals, clothe my younger sisters and brother and also save a little for a rainy day. I see no reason why any young working man can't get married and live on $25 a week. It depends on what sort of a wife he chooses. My advice would be: Choose a plain, sensible girl for a life partner, and you will find her saving, kind and thoughtful. G. K.

The advice of "G. K." is sound and reasonable, but there is no necessity of waiting until your income is $25 a week.

"G. K." herself admits that she is clothing and feeding a family of eight on $28 a week, and also putting a little aside.

No Harm in Pretty Wives

Also there is no necessity of choosing a plain girl unless you happen to fall in love with one. The pretty girls can be just as capable and fine as the plain ones if they are not spoiled by flattery.

As soon as you feel that you can afford to support a wife my advice to

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

MUST FIGHT IT DOWN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few years ago I was in a hospital suffering from an accident. My life was saved by the careful nursing I received from one of the nurses. I fell in love with her and proposed, but she refused me. I went out and lived a very wild life for some time. I came East again, met the girl by accident, proposed again and was accepted. I love her dearly and now she loves me. Not long ago I had another accident, and the doctor, himself a morphine fiend, prescribed the drug for me. I find it impossible to give it up. I only take a little, but fear it may grow on me. Should I tell my wife? I cannot bear to, as I fear it will ruin our happiness. F. C. P.

IT is a very, very serious thing and, unless you conquer it, it will conquer you and ruin your life. You must give it up absolutely. For a while you will be restless, as you say, but that will wear off after a while. Tell your wife and she will help you to fight it. The time to stop it is right now before it gets too firm a hold on you.

TOO EXTRAVAGANT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a number of friends coming to my house for dinner every Sunday afternoon and being in moderate circumstances I cannot make a great display at supper. Next Sunday there will be about fifteen friends of mine, and I have just about $1.50 to spend. Could you tell me what to make which would not exceed that amount by much? Now, if nothing can be done with that, could you tell me how to make the most of that amount if the friends come after supper? D. B.

I THINK that you entertain too much for your means. It would be much wiser to have your guests one Sunday in the month, and then you could do things more as you would like to. As you have so many coming and so little to spend, I would advise you to have them come after supper, and simply serve them cake, fruit and coffee. In that way only can you keep within the amount you have to spend.

BETTER CIRCUMSTANCES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty-three. Kept company with a young man, now twenty-six, for about six years. He was what I pictured an ideal man. His an old maid. But he supports. I know that on Sundays he insists upon her taking things easy while he does the general housecleaning. He has not been healthy, and has not had the steadiest employment, in fact, he never earned more than $11 a week. I loved him and he loved me. Some time ago he showed me an answer to a letter in your column telling a girl not to waste time with a man in circumstances similar to this young man. We decided to break our engagement. He said he would devote the rest of his life to his mother, and although I asked him to try to forget me, he swore he would love me as long as he lived. When people ask him about me, he always has a good word for me. It is over six months since I saw him, and I am anxious to see him. But I don't know how to go about it. I have never, and will never, love anyone else. I also understood he had a position now which pays him $25 a week. M. J.

MOST certainly if a man in poor health earned but $11 a week and had an aged mother to support I would consider it a risk to marry him. Now, however, he at least is earning a good salary and, though his poor health is still a serious obstacle, he at least can support both mother and wife. Write and tell him to call on you.

If you still love each other, things will straighten themselves out very quickly.

A BAD PROSPECT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young lady about a year and like her very much, but have noticed of late that her family is very quarrelsome. She has a brother and sister married and there is always trouble in their home on this account. Now, I fear to take any chances, so tell me how I should part with her, as I do not want any more of her doings, as I would like to part as a gentleman. Thanking you, but still remain, C. A. T.

IF quarrelling runs in the family you would stand a poor chance at happiness. If you have not already proposed to her you had better quietly cease calling so often. You cannot remain on warm friends with a girl whom you have once been very attentive to. It is better to see her as seldom as possible.

FASHION HINTS

THE latest idea in street costumes is to have the skirt and coat of different materials. Usually one garment is of a plain fabric and the other of a tone quite different. Some of the most striking costumes show coats of lustre cloth and long sweeping skirts of chiffon velvet.

For the three-quarter coat full length sleeves prevail, but the three-quarter length sleeve is the most popular for general wear. However, some very odd-looking cassquelaire sleeves are seen. These extend well over the hand as far as the knuckles. They are slightly full at the shoulder and close to the arm closely.

Three-quarter sleeves of velvet and silk are lengthened to seven-eighths by dainty transparent cuffs similar to this young lady's. Cerise, navy blue and purple in every shade, as well as mustard color and petrol green, are the favored hues.

"THE TURN OF THE BALANCE"

By Brand Whitlock

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

"IT the morning," Archie went on, "they lagged us and we ran—they began to shoot, and ——"

He stopped.

"Well," he said very quietly, "I had my rod, and barked at Kouka. I got him."

Marriott went out into the street, glad of the sunlight, the air, the bustle of normal life. And yet, as he analyzed his sensations, he was surprised to find that the whole affair had lacked the sense of tragedy he had expected; it all seemed natural and commonplace enough.

Archie was the same boy he had known before. The murder was but an incident in Archie's life, that was all, just as his own sins and follies and mistakes were incidents that usually appeared to be necessary and unavoidable—incidents he could always absolutely account for and palliate and excuse and justify. Sometimes it seemed that even good grew out of evil.

Sometimes? Yes, always, he felt, else were the universe insane. And besides, where was the difference between sins?

What inside one operator was another? Wherein was the murder Archie had done worse than the unfaithfulness of Madame Marriott, had spoken that morning? But Marriott put all phases of the question aside, and tried to force Archie back to its first cause.

To do this, he became fascinated with the speculation, and his heart beat fast as he thought that he, Marriott, was the case to a jury in all its clarity and truth—perhaps—perhaps!

CHAPTER VII.

ARCHIE did not have his hearing the next morning. The newspapers said "the State" was not ready, which meant that it was the prosecutor, and the police were not ready. Quinn and Allen had conferred.

They felt it to be their duty to have Archie put to death if possible, and they were undecided as to what case would the better insure this result.

Allen found legal difficulties; there was the question whether or not the murder of Kouka had been murder in the first degree. Hence he wished to have Bridget Flanagan identify Archie.

Several days elapsed, and then one morning Bentley, the sheriff, brought Bridget Flanagan to the Central police station in a carriage. Allen and Cleary and Quinn, with several officers and reporters, were waiting to witness her confrontation of Archie.

The old woman was dressed in black; she wore a black shawl and a black bonnet, but these had faded independently of each other, so that each was now of its own dingy shade.

The dress had a brown cast, the shawl a tone of green, the bonnet was dusty and graying, and the black veil that was tied by knots under her brow, like the head of a nun, had been empurpled by the process of decay. She leaned heavily on Bentley, tottering in her weakness, now and then lifting her arms with a wild, nervous gesture.

Bentley's huge, disproportionate bulk moved uncertainly beside her, lurching this way and that, as if he feared to step on her feet or her ancient gown, finding it difficult to adjust his length to support and guide her.

At last he got her to a chair. At the edge of the purplish well bound across the hairless brown, a strip of adhesive plaster showed. The old woman wearily closed the eyes that had gazed on the horrors of the tragedy; her mouth moved in senile spasms.

Now and then she mumbled little prayers that sounded like oaths; and raised to her lips the little bell lute which she had wadded her handkerchief.

"You Kilt Her"

And she sat there, her palsied head shaking disparaging negatives. The police, the detectives, the prosecutor, the reporters looked on. They said nothing for a long time.

Cleary, trying to speak with an exaggerated tenderness, finally said:

"Miss Flanagan, we hate to trouble you, but we won't keep you long. We think we have the man who killed your dear sister—we'd like to have you see him—"

The old woman started, tried to get up, sank back, made a strange noise in her throat, pushed out her hands toward Cleary as if to repulse him and his suggestion, then clasped her hands, wrung them, closed her eyes, swayed to and fro in her chair and moaned, signalling the little support that sounded like oaths.

Then she said, Quinn brought a glass of water.

Presently the old woman grew calm again after a while Cleary renewed his suggestion. The old woman consented to see them.

Cleary whispered to the two policemen and left the room. The policemen were gone what seemed a long time, but at last they appeared in the doorway, between them, looking expectantly about him, was Archie Kourer. The policemen stood uncertainly, awkwardly about, while the others bore the old woman to a couch. Cleary advanced.

"Miss Flanagan," he said very gently, standing beside her and bending inquiringly over her, "Miss Flanagan, will you please look now and tell us—if you ever saw this man before, if he is the man who—"

Wearily, slowly, the old woman raised her blue eyelids; and then she shuddered, started, seemed to have a sudden access of strength, got to her feet and cried out:

"Oh, my poor sister! my poor sister! You kill her! You kilt her!"

"Identification!"

Then she sank to her knees and collapsed on the floor. Bentley ran across the room, brought a glass of water and

MERRY BATTLE STILL ON; WHO'S THE TRIMMER?

Can You Guess Whose Hand Wields the Shears in the American Cartoon?

FEW OF THE LETTERS TODAY

It is a merry contest, this trying to discover the identity of the man wielding the shears in the BOSTON AMERICAN'S cartoon labelled "Who is this Trimmer?" The answers continue to pour in, interest is unabated, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is still the favorite by a large majority.

No attention is paid to anonymous contributions, but several were received today in which it was asked: "Is Postmaster Hibbard, the Republican candidate for Mayor, the Trimmer?" For some reason those who suggested Mr. Hibbard didn't see fit to sign their names, and the contributions were thrown away.

Mayor Fitzgerald isn't quite all alone in the contest, because there have been other names mentioned. One man has suggested President Roosevelt, because he trimmed the bears and nature fakirs. Another had the opinion that the great "trimmer" of the State was Lieutenant Governor Louis A. Draper.

But figuring out that the owner of the hand could be none other than John F. Fitzgerald, the latter's record and the utterances in which they asserted that the Mayor had trimmed, were cited. Another had both promises and pledges made before the last city election.

Some of the latest answers follow:

Now Up to the People.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

There are many trimmers, but who can this trimmer be?

The hand looks very familiar. It is trimming the promises that the people will settle to their own satisfaction on election day.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

No. 24 Davis street, Boston.

"If He Hasn't, Who Has?"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The hand is the hand of John F. Fitzgerald. If he has not trimmed the people, who has?

KARL SAWYER.

No. 198 Savin Hill avenue, Boston.

"Success to Coulthurst."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The trimmer behind the hand with the shears is the Democratic party heads who are directing the system of notorious repeating. They trimmed me of one of the most sacred rights of every American citizen—the right to vote. Without my knowledge a repeater acting under their orders, voted on my name and caused me to be enrolled as Democrat. I discovered this at the primaries last week, but I am going out now to do a little trimming myself before the next Mayoralty election. I will show the Democratic bosses that they can trim me no more.

Long life and success to the Independence Leagues and its candidate, John A. Coulthurst. He will put a stop to the trimmers.

GEORGE W. REESE.

No. 98A Webster street, East Boston.

Bigger, Busier Trimmer.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I believe the hand of the trimmer is the hand of John F. Fitzgerald, because he promised a clean administration, which promise he has broken.

Who can trust any man that would say what he did about John B. Moran before election, then after him the glad hand after election and say: "You're all right." Who's a bigger, better and busier trimmer than Fitzgerald?

ARNOLD GOLDBERG.

No. 10 Elbert street, Roxbury.

"Men, High-Minded Men!"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your cartoon, inscribed "Who Is This Trimmer?" points directly to the man who, before the State election, you so ably pictured wielding a whip and driving into submission like galley slaves, some of his fellow citizens.

These men—most of whom doubtless helped to clothe him with his little brief authority, not to play fantastic political tricks at their expense, but for the people's cost, but with the real intent of making our city a Bigger, Busier, Busier Boston—animated by the spirit of freedom and assisted by all true liberty-loving voters, will, by their ballots at the city election, give expression to their idea as to what truly constitutes a city's greatness.

Their unmistakable verdict we all anticipate:

Men, high-minded men!
Men who their duties know
But know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain.

G. H. A. MEYER.

No. 25 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester.

Says Moran Betrayed.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The hand shown in the puzzle" is none other than that of John F. Fitzgerald, who six or seven months ago professed to be a friend of John B. Moran, but was later found trying to get the city employes to vote for Donahoe or lose their jobs. He has trimmed all, even his friends, and has proved himself unfit to be Mayor, because Boston wants no enemy within its walls. Neither do they want a man who pretends to be a friend, as the Mayor has done, while all the time he was Moran's mortal enemy.

ALEXANDER WILLIAMS.

No. 138 South street, West Lynn, Mass.

Waterloo in December.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I believe the hand shown in the cartoon belongs to the Mayor of Boston, John F. Fitzgerald. The reason I believe so is because he has promised to make our city bigger, better and busier, but he has not lived up to his promises. He has only been heating about the bush. To make a long story short, he is a man of broken promises. He will meet his Waterloo at the city election.

SAMUEL RAFFLOWICH.

No. 100 Kingston street.

The Hand in the Cartoon.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The hand in the cartoon I should suggest is that of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

HARVEY S. KNIFFEN.

No. 7 Oak terrace, Dorchester.

"The Nearest Ever."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In my estimation the hand wielding the shears is Mayor Fitzgerald's. He has wielded the shears ever since he was in office. Fitzgerald is the nearest to a trimmer that I know of.

ERNEST S. BOODEN.

No. 174A Bloomfield street, Boston.

"Easily Made, Easily Broken."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It is the hand of John F. Fitzgerald. He is essentially a trimmer, as he sets his cabin to catch every favorable political breeze. As an instance of his double dealing might be mentioned his flop from Moran for Governor in the open while he secretly lined him at the polls. Before his election he pledged himself to a municipal lighting plant, after which he hastened to lie with those opposed to it.

He trimmed his friends by contracting political debts which he failed to pay.

He dodged innumerable issues and reiterated promises and pledges without number as the waste basket before election, and in view of the foregoing it is fair to assume that his promises and pledges to the future will be as easily made and as easily broken.

Yours for honesty in office,

F. C. WILDMAN.

KEY TO TRAGEDY IN BROWN'S LETTERS

tionate letters written by her to the man she killed. Here are some of these epistles:

May 13, 1902.

Dearest Dolly—Your two letters of the eighth and ninth here. Have not been to telegraph office. Do not worry, darling, I will brush away your troubles and wipe away your tears. I will try very hard to make you happy in life. Be happy. Be your own light hearted self.

I expect to go back to S. L. to-morrow and will have a long letter for you. I love you. I worship you. I am your husband.

Excuse the shortness of this letter. I have but a moment. I like the colored dress and the other. Get good clothes and that will please me. I am full of love for you to-day.

(Signed) YOUR OWN.

May 14, 1902. Beloved: I am still wretchedly sick, but screw a line to let you know I am thinking of you. I believe there is but one mail a day to Lynn, and I have no typewritten and will send it to you for safe keeping. I am worrying about you to-day, but loving you intensely. I love you all the time. Hope you have not gone near Women's Federation. Will wire you until I go to the farm, daily, or rather nightly.

AS EVER YOUR OWN.

His Love a Mania.

On May 6, 1902, Brown wrote:

"If I did not love you so intensely I would not care, but my love has become a mania that masters all thought and puts me in a perfect fever.

"I love you, I love you is all that I can say, and saying it will write again to-night.

In a postcript he adds:

"Must have had inspiration of something wrong with you last night. I had a nervous fit in the night and could not sleep, but woke up in great agony. Think I can tell what you are thinking about. What were you doing at 11:30?

May 9, 1902.

My own darling Dolly—I woke up in the night with that deep pain apprehension I have had for you the past week. My heart aches and aches and aches for you. My dearest one, I feel that some evil is befalling you. I can only hope and trust I think it was a mistake that you went so far away. We ought to meet. How much better if I was now going to find you on the farm.

However, we will make the best of it and do better when we can. I read your vile love letter while breakfast was being prepared. I like to read your scolding. I know the reaction will come, and you are ashamed of them before the time I get to read them.

May, 1902.

Dearest Love: We are reaching Shoshone and I cannot let pass any occasion to send a word of greeting and of love. The farther I am from S. L. the better I feel. If you were with me I would think I had the greatest and best of earth. I am very fond of you, and I recall at times can Falls your enjoyment of the trip, and, of course, think of you every minute. Think of you with all the love you could wish for. You do not believe you say, but in your heart you know that I am enfolding love for you.

YOUR OWN A.

Could Not Sleep for Love.

May 5, 1902.

Beloved—This morning is very bright and after I look at your picture I feel the warm thrill of love and life, and know that you will get my telegram and love me and know that I love you. Will send another to-night. I got so tired nights, I cannot sleep or think. But, darling, if I once get so that I can live with you night and day, we will grow young and happy together. I believe that day is at hand.

YOUR OWN.

Bellevue: My love—Your bitter letters are at hand, and I like to get one letter to-day. I never intended to taunt you. I intend nothing but love and devotion. I am yours, as the letters I send to-day will show you. I am ashamed you wrote Clarence. Write me that he said.

As to the will, it gives you more than any child. It is exactly as you and I planned. If you have not destroyed it, do not. If you have, I will give you the other, but you made a great mistake in destroying it. It was my better judgment. As I write to you and hope that we were in exact touch in every way. Will go to the farm now. Received your letters and answer mine at length. Just now all the answer I can make is the reiteration of love and fond longing to clasp you in my arms, and hold you there until all bitterness is forgotten and the light of love shines in each other's eyes. I am yours, Dolly—you must be mine.

YOUR OWN A.

Will Protection for Child.

May 18, 1902.

My Own—You did wrong to destroy the will because you were angry at me. It was at least a temporary protection to Arthur, and he would need it badly if anything happened me, to tell nothing about yourself. Good night, sweet dreams, sweet love.

Among the exhibits is an original telegram, as follows:

Harley, Ida., Nov. 30, 1902.

To Anna M. Bradley:

No. 510 Second West, Salt Lake, Utah: Get letter this afternoon; meet me in Depot Sunday morning.

(Signed) ARTHUR BROWN.

Below this Mrs. Bradley wrote:

You are the dearest love in the world. Why tell me to meet you. Of course, I don't always? I think of you and love you every minute. If our life goes on together I will try to smooth your pathway. If you decide to part I will always take care of yours and yours. God bless him, Kiss him, and keep your heart warm and true.

DUCHESS PLANS GREAT BALL FOR SZECHENYIS

SUNDERLAND HOUSE DANCE TO ECLIPSE ANYTHING EVER SEEN IN LONDON.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—As soon as Gladys Duchess early this year that the magnificent ballroom was bare and not used. Since then the work of furbishing and decorating has gone on steadily.

The ballroom is vast, the staircase approaching it surpasses that at Devonshire or Stafford House, both in width and splendor of marble.

The invitations are written to friends but she will be back before Christmas. She has confided the ball project to them as a secret, but the story has leaked out.

The Duchess intends to stand by her relatives, to be associated with them and to entertain lavishly and openly, which greatly annoys the Churchills.

The Duke's present tactics at Blenheim are exactly those of Sunderland and Oxford since the Duchess went to America he has tried a new method to win a navigable sympathy and goodwill. He is giving increasingly costly dinners, inviting the parish clergy, curate, doctor and such people. The dinners average about 40 persons. Before these people the Duke has cultivated a reasonable, but unmistakable, manifesting interest in their children and petty affairs, to prove that he is approachable and to contradict the stories about his temper.

prepare for a visit in January of Count Szechenyi and his bride. They are coming to London immediately on arriving in Europe, and the Duchess means to give in her great ballroom at Sunderland House the most brilliant private ball London has ever known.

The Sunderland House ball is thought to have been suggested by Mrs. Oliver Belmont (the Duchess's mother), who constantly lamented while staying with the

LYNN HAS 8 CANDIDATES FOR MAYORALTY

Politics are warming up in Lynn. With eight candidates seeking the indorsement of the Republican and Democratic parties the caucuses this week, the fight promises to be the hottest the city has seen for many years. To-morrow evening the Republicans will choose their candidate from Hon. Thomas E. Porter, a well-known real estate and insurance agent; Charles W. Gay, a member of the Board of Public Works; Alderman Henry R. Jacobs, Alderman Martin L. Call, Alderman John W. Tapper and Frank R. Austin.

The Democrats will choose as their candidate either William A. Kelley, a former Representative, who is admitted to be the leader of one faction of the Democratic party in Lynn, or George N. Nichols, who is running as an Independent Democrat, and who also seeks the regular party endorsement, in addition to the unusual number of candidates for the Mayoralty the number of aspirants for nomination as Aldermen and Councilmen is surprisingly large.

SHOOT DOWN BURGLARS, SAYS POLICE CHIEF

"Keep loaded revolvers ready to shoot" burglars down."

Chief Melville C. Parkhurst of the Somerville police, moved by the large number of robberies in Greater Boston recently, gives this advice to the residents of Somerville. He has also instructed his patrolmen to shoot down burglars rather than let them escape, and has advised residents of Somerville to keep loaded revolvers in their homes to repel robbers.

The Somerville police, under the chief's instructions, are slightly exercising at targets to improve their marksmanship.

The dozens of burglaries that have occurred around Boston this Fall have prompted Chief Parkhurst to take steps that shall keep criminals away from Somerville.

The chief, in a public statement, says:

"When the courts in certain parts of the State, having jurisdiction in cases in which the defendants are charged with burglary and robbery, are constantly placing the offenders, after they have been found guilty of the crimes charged, on probation or are placing the cases on file without meting out any punishment, it is the critical time when law-abiding citizens are fully justified in adopting means to protect themselves against thieves in their homes at least.

"I am not in any sense of the word an extremist and try to perform my duty in accordance with what is right and just, but in view of the wholesale number of burglaries which have been committed recently I believe that the people with homes should be asked to help protect themselves."

BOY HELD AS BURGLAR.

Caught in the act, the police charge, of attempting to break and enter the liquor store of Thomas J. Boles, No. 273 Washington street, John McDonald, twenty-one, claiming to live at No. 115 Green street, last night was arrested by Patrolman Fisher.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 18.—John Wenzel walked to his death in Sing Sing prison early to-day without a tremor. He took his seat in the electric chair calmly, and at 5:51 o'clock the current was turned on. Three minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Wenzel was executed for killing George Spaz in the latter's Brooklyn saloon, May 6, 1905. Wenzel's two sisters, a cousin and brother-in-law bade him good-by yesterday, after exhausting every effort to save him.

ROCKEFELLER LOSES PRIZE STOCK IN FIRE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Rockwood Hall, the country mansion of William Rockefeller, two miles north of Tarrytown, was to-day threatened by fire, which destroyed two of his cottages and a stable containing valuable prize stock.

Mr. Rockefeller superintended the fighting of the fire by his employes, but a high wind spread the flames, and after the cottages and stables had been destroyed the blaze spread to Mr. Rockefeller's winter supply of coal and devoured that.

A prize Jersey bull, for which Mr. Rockefeller paid $10,000 two years ago, was so ferocious that its multi-millionaire owner gave orders that it should not be taken from the burning stables and it was consumed in the flames. It was feared that if the animal was unleashed it would endanger the lives of the fire fighters.

Two valuable horses and three prize cows were also burned, but fifty head of sheep were rescued. The great quantity of hay which had been stored in the loft to last through the Winter was destroyed.

The fire started in the cottage of Frank Virtin, an employe on the estate, about 200 feet from Rockwood Hall and the wind carried burning embers to the roof of the mansion, but men with lines of hose protected the house. Mr. Rockefeller would not estimate his loss.

Newhall, the Harvard quarterback, may not be able to get into the game with Yale in the Stadium Saturday.

Newhall received a severe cut over his eye in the Dartmouth game. The injury is not serious, but it is said to be impossible to bandage the eye in such a manner as to afford protection in a football game without causing Newhall the sight of the eye for the game.

Dr. Nichols is not willing to take the responsibility of puting Newhall on the field without such bandage, which would greatly impair the player's usefulness, particularly in the back field. Without this bandage Newhall might reopen the wound, which might cause serious results. Newhall's father has been acquainted with the conditions, and he is the one to decide whether the Harvard quarterback will play.

The Harvard coaches are all at sea. They don't know what to do with their team in preparation for Yale.

All the men in charge of the Crimson can expect to do is to improve the team work. They know they have no chance of beating Yale, but hope to keep down the score below Dartmouth's.

The players will take it easy this afternoon and be ready for hard work to-morrow. All this week except Wednesday there will be practice behind closed gates. On Wednesday the public will be admitted to a part of the practice.

CHASE STILL PLAYING WITH THE OUTLAWS

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 18.—Hal Chase played Saturday and Sunday with the San Jose team of the so-called "outlaw league," despite the published statement quoting him as saying that he would abide by the ruling of the national commission.

Chase pitched for San Jose Saturday and won his game, thereby getting much praise from the local San Jose papers. Again Sunday Chase covered the position of shortstop and was the star of the game. He played under the name of Schultz in both games, although the newspaper accounts were free to give the credit to Chase.

There has been considerable comment among the fans on Chase's action in hiding behind an assumed name while giving out interviews that he had decided to obey the commands of the national commission. He has already signed a contract to play next season with Clark Griffith.

WILD-WESTERN SPIRIT HELPED DARTMOUTH

The statistics of Dartmouth's victorious football team reveal the interesting fact that only one member of the "push," in the Hanover-Princeton game, lives in New Hampshire, and this one, Long, the big tackle, first saw the light in Broadalbin, Massachusetts leads with four of the seventeen men who earned their "D" in the Harvard game, the majority hail from outside New England. Twenty-two big states are represented by the seventeen players. Captain Glass, quarterback, and Brums and Rich, two of the big linemen, come from Colorado. Hanley, halfback, lived in California. Ingersoll and Smart, the other halfbacks, hail respectively from Ohio and Iowa. Marks, the smashing fullback, is a Minnesotan, as is Swann, right end.

The Bunkari brothers represent Maine, Schildmiller, Connecticut, and DeAngelis, New York. Sherwin is a Cushing Academy boy, while the greater bonus in recognition to the victorious lance is made up of Tobin, of South Boston, Kennedy of Roxbury and Baldwin of Somerville.

Elis Will Do No More Hard Practice This Season

YALE TEAM HERE THURSDAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—Yale coaches will give the regulars on the eleven no more hard work before the Harvard game in the Stadium Saturday. They don't want the Elis to grow stale and, although they expect to beat the Crimson easily, they will take no chances and send in Coch's best team in the best shape.

Football practice is practically over for the season at Yale, although the scrub will be held in training till Wednesday night for a little brush on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons with the regulars.

Plans have been completed for the departure of the regulars on Thursday afternoon for Auburndale, Mass. The team expects to arrive at the Woodlawn Park Hotel in time for dinner, and will remain there till Saturday noon, when they will take special cars over to the gridiron in the Stadium.

It is probable that the forward pass will figure in the Yale-Harvard match to a much greater extent than it did in the Yale-Princeton game. At Yale it is thought that the heavy and rather slow Harvard team will not be as likely as the light and fast Tiger eleven to defend itself against this form of attack, and they point to the Carlisle and the Springfield Training School games to show that Harvard has been unable to fathom any well executed forward passing this season.

HOSPITAL REPORTS OF YALE TEAM

Goebel, eye cut.
Coy, two black eyes.
Murphy, leg wrenched.
Brides, leg wrenched.
Congdon, ankle sprained.
Paige, legs hurt.

Hope to Please Dr. Eliot.

The Yale team is anxious to appear on its good behavior through the glasses of critical Dr. Eliot, the distinguished head of Harvard. He is reported to have said harsh things about the Yale play when Yale last played in the Stadium under Captain Hinkey. Indications are that Coy will get the pinn.

Into Tom Shevlin's leadership, and if the Yale players find that they can trounce Harvard by beating off a few paltry forward passes instead of throwing half the Harvard team into the ditch and flipping the giant Crimson line into shreds they will choose the former method.

Instead of ordering the election of a new captain at Yale as soon as the present football season is over, the coaches and team will let this matter lie for three or four weeks. The situation relative to the captaincy for next year is a most interesting one. Eleven of the eleven will be graduated next June, Captain Bigelow, Congdon, Paige, the Jones brothers, Bonnie and Alcott. Of the remaining four Brides is the only player who has been on the eleven longer than this year. The captaincy clearly lies between him and Coy, the star of the team. Coy will be a member of the class of 1909, and Brides of 1910. Coy will be a senior, but he is a medical student, and it has been Yale's policy to elect captains from the academic or scientific department. Indications are that Coy will get the pinn.

TIGERS PRAISE YALE BOYS' FINE PLUCK

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Little Eddie Dillon, the remarkable quarter back of the Princeton team, was chosen as captain to head the eleven next Fall. The team held its annual banquet at the hotel, and chose the little fellow to lead by unanimous vote. The men are pretty well battered up, but in fairly good spirits, considering their bitter disappointment. They all said that the rally of the Yale team in the second half was the most remarkable exhibition of pluck ever witnessed on the football field.

Dillon is a junior in college and plays his last game next year. He made an All-American team this year, running the team after serving as a substitute in the preliminaries. He is the first year he has easily been the star of the Princeton team.

PAPKE WILL MEET TWO BOXERS IN CHELSEA RING

Bill Papke, who has astounded the sporting world recently by his sensational boxing and his quick way of terminating all bouts, will have a lot of work ahead of him for Friday night at Chelsea when he meets two men in bouts of five rounds each. This will be Bill's first essay in a ring with two men the same evening, and it will also be the first time that one man has agreed to undertake the task of meeting and outpointing two men the same night in any ring in this vicinity. It is easily the biggest betting proposition on the matchmaker of the Winnisimmet Athletic Club has outlined for the followers of his organization.

It was the original intention of the club to match Papke and Bartly Connolly of Portland for the main bout of the night, but after consideration the unique plan of engaging two men to meet the Western wonder was later considered favorably.

Another opponent was then sought, but there was some difficulty in finding a man that would come under the 170 pounds limit insisted on by Papke. As Charley Halsey of Lowell was the only man around Boston that could come in at the limit specified in the above, thus remaining the club quickly engaged him, and he will start the ball rolling with Papke Friday night. The Lowell man is in good shape, as he has been working out with Jim Barry for several days and is in better condition than for months. The relative Papke cannot stop him.

The preliminaries introduce Bill McKinnon of Roxbury and Charlie Williams of Gloucester and Gus Ross and Mike Grady.

FORDHAM BOYS SEEK GAME IN THE HUB

FORDHAM, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The Fordham prep. football team, the interscholastic champions of New York city, who have a record a record untarnished by defeat in three years, are contemplating an invasion of Boston, and are anxious to measure strength with the best of the high school eleven in the Hub. The manager would be glad to hear from any school looking for such an intercity contest.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN.

The annual New England cross-country championship, under the auspices of the A. A. A. A. A., will be given under the direction of the St. Joseph's C. T. A. Society of Lynn over the Lynn-Salem course on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28, at 10 a. m. The distance is about five miles. Prizes will be gold, silver and bronze medals to first, seconds and thirds. Entries will close on Nov. 25 with Alfred J. Hill, Jr., No. 21 Bromfield street, Boston.

NO POLO TEAM FOR THE HUB

After sending out notices to all the papers that they had signed a good team for Boston, the National Roller Polo League officials now say there will be nothing doing in the Hub this season. It was said taht the Canton, O., players had been signed for this city. The announcement, however, was premature.

FREEMAN WILL TACKLE BRIGGS

Kid Freeman, the South Boston boxer, who has been showing up in great form the past year, has been matched to meet Jimmy Briggs of Chelsea in Dover, N. H., Thursday in place of Dick Nelson, the Fighting Dane, who has gone back to New York.

Briggs and Freeman will make a great battle for the Dover sports, for both are strenuous performers and will bustle all the time.

TOMMY BURNS WILL FIGHT IRISH CHAMPION BEFORE COMING HOME

By TAD.

Tommy Burns will not return to America immediately if he is victorious in his battle with Gunner Moir, but will stay on the other side and fight Ben Roche, the Irish champion.

In a letter from London which arrived last night Burns states that he can gather in a wagonload of the green currency by beating Roche, and thinks it a grand match.

Roche beat Wilson, the man who knocked Gunner Moir out in two rounds four years ago, and is looked upon over there as another Tom Sharkey.

Tommy also says that he had dinner with Charley Mitchell the evening before writing, and that Charley told him he had nothing to fear on the part of the battle. "Moir is a big fellow and looks formidable enough," said Mitchell, "but he lacks knowledge of the boxing game. He is a hard-hitting fellow, game to the core, but is shy on the finer points."

This was extremely rich news for Burns to hear, as he has been laughed at everywhere he went on account of his size.

Burns would be used to that, however, as we laughed just as much over here when he met and defeated Marvin Hart. At that time Tommy was unknown, and it looked like a slaughter.

He is in his training quarters now at Wembley Home, Wembley, Middlesex, and says it is a grand place.

"Leaving for camp over the match," writes Tommy, "and I figure to be on the short end of the betting at about 10 to 7.

I will have some down on myself, and, take it from me, the biggest surprise in years is coming off after the bell starts the going."

In an interview printed in one of the English papers Burns is quoted as saying: "You must not forget that I was born under the British flag, and am as much an Englishman as Moir. I do not know how far I am going to get on the road to victory with Moir, but there will be hard fighting where I am, and the best man is certain to win."

Burns is really the pugilistic chameleon. When it comes to changing colors Tommy was the reptile backed off the boards. When he is in America he is upholding the Stars and Stripes. When he is home in Canada he is a French-Canadian, and over in England he is the old Johnny Bull kid. If he went to Africa he'd wear rings in his ears and never be was a cannibal. Might buy a wig and four chins or get a fat coat and parrot as an Eskimo.

"My next imitation will be that of a Swiss farmer."

Notes of the Harness Horses

Clarita Dawson boasted the amateur track record of the Belmont Driving Club over its local course to 2:11½ in matinee events recently, which was a half second faster than the former record held by American Lass.

Frank Hayden, of Lewiston, Me., won nine out of ten races run last season at the Fall Grounds. He did not have to mark him better than 2:21½. In one meeting he won three races from him in successive dash. It looks from this like a 2:20 racer and will no doubt be seen on the circuit campaigning through Maine.

There is a report in that Mike Bowerman used a rear to boost the luster of driving General Watts to a mark of 2:08¼ over the Readville track. A big better lived strong on the theory that the trail would be won by Mike Bowerman, but when he heads the colt under the wire paced to beat 2:10 Bowerman did all any man could have accomplished and there is a good deal of the youngster, that he did a whole lot better.

The authorities stifled the fuss box during the recent meeting at Halifax. This was the result of a row that developed over the decision of the Horsemen having decided they came out winning on big deals and jobs to separate the patrons of racing so that certain from their source. It became apparent that the officials came to the conclusion that when there was real heavy betting on the races in evening before they were trotted it was about time to call a halt on the game, and they did not hesitate to help the cause of good sport by ruling in Trotting the races in the stable and executing later on the tracks was what killed pool selling in New England.

Tom Axmondors, by Bingen, out of Marion, by Arboy, scored dan Nancy Hanks, that was bred at the Forbes farm in Pennsylvania was given a record of 2:04 at Readville. He is the property of Joseph E. Madden, owner of many noted trotters, besides being a famous breeder of thoroughbreds.

Trainer Mike Bowerman has won six futurities during the season, no other driver can boast of such a record.

W. L. Scott, of Lexington, made a record as a breeder at the closing Lexington meeting. The get of a brood of, all only did he breed Transfast (2:12¾), sold as a yearling for $1,000 and which in the hands of Ed Geers reduced the record to 2:04¼, but Tom Land, that divided fourth money with Hedgewood Hale, and is already credited with 2:09¾, a winner of the racing futurities this season.

George W. Leavitt has purchased the well-bred mare Alma Pepper and she is expected to produce a foal by Peter the Great in the Spring.

Suggestion has been made that a special train to Washington, D. C., the trotting gosling Bow-Knot be chartered and that he be taken to the capital and through the Western.

W. H. Hill, Jr., Dover, Me., will take the stallion Vassar 2:07, to Idaho in a few weeks. He has been offered $1,000 for the handling horse, and believes that sum will be appreciated by the breeders out there.

DELMONT TO MEET BRITON.

Albert Delmont of this city and Jim Kendrick, champion of the bantam championship of England, will meet in Chelsea December 23. They will box ten rounds at 116 pounds. Kendrick will leave for America in about two weeks.

AUSTRIAN STUDENTS IN KNIFE RIOTS

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Riots among the students of the local university are on the increase and are rapidly assuming a serious aspect. The Germans and Slavs give vent to their protest against the government regulations as to the Italian students by attacking the German students, and several knife battles, in which many were severely wounded, have already taken place. It is expected that the university will be closed unless order is rapidly restored.

In the Hungarian house of Parliament disorderly scenes mark every sitting, and the opposition is further lead to use the like of which have never been witnessed during the stormiest sessions of the House. One of the results of the increased friction of the parties is a duel, which was the deal fought by Representatives Sandor and Nathan, in which the latter sustained fatal injuries.

THREE MILLIONS OF OTHER MEN'S DOLLARS

Such a Fortune Can Bring Its Possessor No Happiness

A foolish young man says he has made $3,000,000 in Wall Street speculation in three months' time.

He thinks that sound business judgment and shrewd observation of the market made this fortune for him.

But he does not hold to this opinion very tenaciously, for he concludes an interview with the announcement that he is never going to gamble again, and that he would advise other young men not to gamble.

Granting that this youth REALLY HAS made $3,000,000, his experience supplies better advice against gambling than he can give in words.

For the fortune he has won has been LOST BY OTHER MEN.

His "business judgment" consisted in playing on the same side of the game with big gamblers and getting away before the big gamblers found out how much money he had, and arranged to take it away from him.

In other words, he had LUCK, which sometimes comes to gamblers.

It is extremely unlikely that he will hold to his resolution to keep out of Wall Street in the future.

He has learned how pleasant it is to get other people's money without working for it. By and by, when his surprise at what he has done wears away, he will begin actually to believe that it was his sagacity that made him win.

Then he will try to coin this sagacity into more money. The result will be what it always is.

Experienced professional thieves who make a business of Wall Street gambling will gather in his money, leaving him with the taste for gambling, which will use up all his subsequent honest earnings, and with nothing else.

While the new millionaire is away spending some of the money that has come to him, many other men, who once had that money, are facing ruin.

There are thirty good-sized fortunes—sixty competences—in the pile of dollars he is said to have accumulated.

Therefore, possibly sixty families, once well provided for, are wondering how they can begin life again.

Women who have toiled patiently through the years, denying themselves the comforts of life to help their husbands save money, have labored merely for this gilded youth.

Young men whose educations seemed assured, and who felt that they would be well equipped for the fight for existence, will have to go to work, with no education, so that a rich idler can spend large sums of money.

Homes will be mortgaged and sold, comforts sacrificed, happy prospects replaced by despair, all because one gambler has taken for himself three million dollars that had been earned or saved by others, perhaps as foolish as he, but vastly more deserving.

For a youth of twenty-eight to possess a fortune of $3,000,000 THAT HE HAD EARNED would indicate that he was a very unusual and very valuable citizen.

If the money had been made by an invention, the world would have profited more than the inventor. If it had come from a mine which he had discovered, or a business he had built up, he could feel justified in boasting of it, and even his advice might be received tolerantly.

But this money represents no honest effort on his part; no reward for his industry or ingenuity in helping his fellow creatures.

A few days ago it belonged to others. To-day it is his merely because reckless gambling is still permitted, and visions of getting rich quick still dazzle the minds of the foolish or the inexperienced.

In this country there is no prejudice against the rich merely because they have money.

The work of men who establish and control great industries is liberally rewarded. No one grudges them their wealth, or seeks to limit its accumulation.

But there is a general belief that any one who accumulates a fortune ought to work for it. Three million dollars made in three months in gambling cannot possibly do its owner a hundredth part as much good as its loss will do HARM to those who really earned it.

The success of this young gambler ought to excite pity rather than envy.

The boy who intends to be a useful, contented American would rather spend his life working for very ordinary wages than in idly squandering a fortune built on the ruins of the hopes and plans of his fellow beings.

DO YOUR SHOPPING IN THE MORNING

You Will Save Both Your Money and Your Temper

Although we seldom presume to give advice to our intelligent women readers, we DO SUGGEST that they get their Christmas shopping done IN THE MORNING.

It is before noon that the stores are least crowded. The clerks are fresher, better tempered and more obliging.

It is easier to find what you want, and to find the cheapest things, which are, of course, often in the greatest demand.

In the morning, after 8 or 8:30, there are no crowds on the cars.

There will be a great deal of Christmas buying in the next few weeks.

Necessarily, there will be crowds in the stores afternoons. Many people can do their shopping at no other time.

But if it is possible for you to do yours in the morning you will find that always delightful duty so much more delightful that you will even want to thank us for this advice.

And when advice is so good that it is worth returning thanks for it is the duty of a newspaper to give it, at all costs.

WOMAN NEED NEVER BE OLD

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I am unable to understand why authors (and newspaper writers) invariably lay great stress on the fact that "she was young and beautiful"—if she was young—while they make no mention of ters little if she is of the slender, willowy age or appearance if the woman was over type or of the stouter, perhaps billowy, thirty. This is quite absurd. No woman build, she has not reached her perfection has reached her prime until she is forty. in that particular figure until she is forty. At that age she has reached the moral, The companionship of a woman of that mental and physical perfection for which age, who has trained her mind and has she was created. There is nothing more cared properly for her physical self, will beautiful, to a normal and wholesome be found more thoroughly enjoyable than mind, than a matron of forty, perhaps a the rapid fellowship of a less mature girl, mother, a contented woman. She has then for she is still a girl, and will always be reached the age of wisdom, of knowledge, so wit and philosophy. Her mind and her soul are just as young as they ever were. She has kept her mind young by thinking young thoughts. She need never grow old. Physically, there is nothing more beautiful than a woman of forty, if she

PRESUMPTION

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

WHENEVER I am prone to doubt or wonder—
I check myself, and say, "That mighty One
Who made the solar system cannot blunder—
And for the best all things are being done."
Who sets the stars on their eternal courses
Has fashioned this strange earth by some sure plan.
Bow low, bow low to these majestic forces
Nor dare to doubt their wisdom—puny man.

YOU cannot put one little star in motion,
You cannot shape one single forest leaf,
Nor fling a mountain up, nor sink an ocean.
Presumptuous pigmy, large with unbelief.
You cannot bring one dawn of regal splendor
Nor bid the day to shadowy twilight fall,
Nor send the pale moon forth with radiance tender,
And dare you doubt the One who has done all?

"SO much is wrong, there is such pain—such sinning,"
Yet look again—behold how much is right!
And He who formed the world from its beginning
Knows how to guide it upward to the light.
Your task, O man, is not to carp and cavil
At God's achievements, but with purpose strong
To cling to good, and turn away from evil—
That is the way to help the world along.

PLAGIARISM

WHEN I went to school yesterday my teecher sed Well, well, Bobble, what do you think, one (1) of the other boys has been riteing essays too, Algernon Blots, son of our estimabel brewer, sed teecher. Why, teecher, I sed, can you beat it? Let me see the essay, I sed. & this is the essay she showed me:

This essay is about beer, it is what my father maiks, it is brown at the bottom & wite at the top where the foam is, look not on the beer when it is brown in the stein for in the end it bites like a nder & stings like a wiener wersi, already yet.

Now, Bobble, sed my teecher, I want you to rite me a essay about Plagiarism, wich meens steeling stuff from grate poets, authors, etc.

Plagiarism cums from a old Roman word wich meens Go as far as you like, among the grate men wich stole stuff is Mister Shakespeer, Mister Lord Byron, Mister Belasko etc. Mister Belasko is the only one (1) I naimed wich is still living & he isent ashamed of anything he did, Dount be afraid to steel stuff in the Litery wurld, he tould me, as the old poet sed, Mister Belasko tould me:

Everybody steels but Father
& he cant write.

When I went hoam & asked Pa about Algernon Blots, wich had been steeling my essays, Pa laffed. Dount you care, Bobble, he sed. Remember, Bobble, Pa sed, this poor boy of wich you speck of is only a brewer's son, doing the best he can, why dount you send him a poem of protest, sed Pa, like this:

Men may boost Blots's essays as much as they will
But the scum of the lager will cling to them still.

Never mind, Bobble, sed Pa, I rote a peece once for a song, it was called The Wedding Bells was Ringing & the Birde was on the Job, thare was lots of butiful lines, Pa sed, telling how the sweet yung gurl had cum cleer down on the Lenox Ave. line, & the fellow nevver calm, so the sweet gurl sed

Take back yure ring of ours;
I will go back to the Bronx!

Then, sed Pa, after all the musick publishers passed up my peece, it was stole by Miss Victoria, wich called it Thare was I, Waiting at the Church. It was ever thing with me, sed Pa, ever since childhood's happy days at the Business college. Pa sed, I nevver stooped to pick up a watermelon, sed Pa, but what the farmer calm & made me fade away.

Perhaps, sed Ma, but I will make you twenty (20) to one (1) to show, Ma sed.

A GENTLEWOMAN'S HOTEL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Was much pleased in reading article last Sunday in BOSTON AMERICAN where Mrs. Charlotte Smith of Washington, D. C., is trying to move the philanthropic people of Boston to build a gentlewomen's hotel, where women who have seen better days and are obliged to work for a living can have a little kitchen all their own, with a living room beside, where the "ogre"-eyed landlady will not be peeping through the keyhole to see if they are burning too much gas, washing a handkerchief in the washbowl and doing many other things that a working woman has to do. These are the women who need such a hotel. Why, the investors would double their money, besides having the blessing of all these struggling women. God pity the working woman in a boarding or rooming house. May such a building be speedily erected is the wish of one who knows by experience what it is to live in a rooming house. Please give these lines space in the BOSTON AMERICAN, which does so much good for the people.
